END CONVICT LEASE

CLOSE GUARD FOR WITNESSES

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 24.—The state senate today fell in line with the lower house in voting an end to the convict lease system in Florida.

The senate which two weeks ago refused to concur in a house bill which included a clause providing for permanent abolition of corporal punishment in prison camps, today approved a substitute bill which in substance confirmed action of the lower house.

CROSS CITY, Fla., May 24.—Protected by a detail of deputies, five state witnesses were enroute here today from Tallahassee to testify against Walter Higginbotham, "whipping boss," charged with beating Martin Tabert to death in a convict camp.

The five witnesses, all former negro prisoners at the Putman Lumber company camp where the North Dakota youth died following alleged inhuman treatment, appealed to Governor Hardee for protection.

Governor Hardee gave the negroes letters addressed to Sheriff Lipscomb of Taylor county, instructing the latter to protect the witnesses and hold them at Perry, near here, until they are needed in the trial, which was scheduled to be resumed here today.

Commissioner of Agriculture W. A. McRae, following signing of the new anti-flogging bill by Governor Hardee, today notified all convict camp captains, guards and employes that the new measure would be enforced to the letter.

The Dixie county grand jury which was set up in connection with the Higginbotham trial, will make its presentment to Judge A. G. Campbell today or tomorrow.

Several indictments, it was expected, would be returned as a result of the investigation into alleged intimidation of the legislative subcommittee when it visited the grave of Martin Tabert in Mingo cemetery several weeks ago.

EXPLORER LEFT RADIO BEHIND

NOME, Alaska, May 24.—Radio equipment which Capt. Roald Amundsen, famed Arctic explorer, planned to use in his airplane flight across the north pole, proved inadequate and has been left behind, it was learned today.

This word, following cable advices from Berlin that Haakon Hammer, Amundsen's agent, had reported the explorer's airplane faulty and antiquated, added a new element of doubt to the great adventure Amundsen is undertaking.

It was believed here that Amundsen had already reached Wainwright, the point from which he and Oskar Ohmdahl, his airplane pilot, will jump off the top of the world, literally plunging into space, enroute to Spitzenbergen. Word of his arrival was expected by dogteam any day.

BANDIT SHOOTS TENNESSEE PAIR

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 24.—W. O. Spencer was killed and his companion, Miss Laura Wheaton Johnson, a school teacher probably fatally injured when fired on by a negro bandit near here today.

The negro rifled the dead man's pockets and snatched rings from her fingers, Miss Johnson told police.

The murder was committed near where Ruth McElwain Tucker and Duncan Waller were killed under similar circumstances last January.

DID NOT DISCUSS MOUNT

Mrs. Katherine Hotchkiss Lovemaid Declares Letter to Mills Referred to Family Troubles.

CHICAGO, May 25.—State's attorney Robert E. Crowe today received a questionnaire from Mrs. Katherine Hotchkiss Longmaid, New York, in which the latter declared that correspondence exchanged by her and J. Allen Mills never referred to the Leighton Mount death mystery.

A skeleton said to be that of Mount, who disappeared during the 1921 class rush at Northwestern University was recently found under a Lake Michigan pier. Authorities handling a grand jury probe of the mystery received reports that Miss Hotchkiss wrote to Mills, 1921 freshman class president, "what a day that must have been."

Mrs. Longmaid said this referred to family troubles Mills confided to her.

PROUD OF HIS RECORD.

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—"Didn't you say you had escaped seven times from an Alabama reformatory?" asked an attorney of Jack Thomas, witness in a trial here today.

"No sir," replied Thomas.

The attorney insisted.

"It was twenty-seven times I escaped," said Thomas indignantly.

Edith Day, star of "Irene," of musical comedy fame a few years ago, is pictured above with Pat Somerset, an English actor, whom she has married. Miss Day's recent divorce from Carle Carlton, theatrical manager and manager, of New York, has now become effective. Somerset was named as co-respondent by Carlton, who sought to have the English actor deported, but finally dropped those proceedings. Somerset was divorced at the [illegible] by his wife, who was known as Margaret Banerman, a Cincinnati [illegible] named Miss Day in her divorce proceedings.

Original "Arkansas Traveler" Is Among the Entrants.

PARIS, Mo., May 24.—Veteran fiddlers from the Missouri provinces tripped into Paris today to saw off some old time tunes and incidentally determine the "grand champeen" fiddler of the state.

Two score artists of the bow and fiddle, the pick of the provinces, entered the sawdust arena at the local fairgrounds and tuned up for the preliminaries. Only the real old timers over sixty-five are eligible for the first event.

C. A. Porter, original "Arkansas traveler" from Contesville, was first to arrive. He has a "repertory" so ancient, he says, the judges will give him first prize out of sheer respect for age.

Mrs. Lem Waterman, wife of a Baptist minister at Eldridge, was the sole feminine entrant but she wants the state fiddling honors for herself she said, and she "never yet seen a man that could outfiddle her."

CLEVELAND, O., May 24.—Development of forestry resources of the nation is necessary to keep the price of newsprint from soaring shortly, Dr. Hugh P. Baker, secretary of the American paper and pulp association, declared in a speech here today before the cost association of the paper industry.

"Permanency of the paper industry in the United States is largely dependent upon protection of the nation's forests," Baker said. "Canada is determined to control the industry on this continent and is already so nearly in control of the newsprint side of the industry that there is talk in Canada of an export duty on newsprint."

RUM RUNNERS IN OPEN

Ply Trade Day and Night Without Fear of Interference, It Is Charged.

DETROIT, May 24.—Canadian rum-runners ply their liquid trade on the Detroit river here both day and night wholly without fear of police interference, Judge Clyde I. Webster, holding a one-man grand jury investigation into alleged "protection" given rum-runners, declared he had been informed today.

One witness testified that police failed to interfere, even when tipped off that a large booze cargo was being landed in Detroit, Judge Webster said.

Another witness testified that the rum-runners had offered $1,000 a day rent for two days for a building on the river front to be used as a temporary warehouse for a cargo of Canadian whisky, according to Webster.

JUDGE IS OUT FOR AN ULTRA DRY JURY

Omaha Jurist Hopes to Be Able to Find Twelve Men Who Have Never Tasted Liquor.

OMAHA, May 24.—District Judge Day is out to get a jury of twelve men who never took a drink. He wants them not only good and true, but good and dry. He isn't having much luck.

The judge in getting his jury, is running up against men who are nearly dry, a trifle moist, just sort of dustlaid and some who are, at times, saturated.

But he doesn't seem to find many true sons of the great Sahara. But his honor is at it still and says he will fight it out if it takes all summer.

A man is being tried in his court on whom a pint and a half of liquor was found and the judge wants to see him tried by a dry jury if it's "in the cards."

At 2 o'clock fifty-five men had been questioned. Of this number seven were admittedly "good and dry."

It looked like the judge would have to empanel a new list of talesmen if he gets his dry jury. There are only eighty-four jurymen in district court now and all available ones have been called.

"It's the height of folly to try a man accused of violating the liquor laws before a jury of men who help violate them by drinking liquor," the judge said.

"Why, it is outrageous. Here we have a liquor law that is being violated by juryman after juryman."

G. O. P. PAPER WITHDRAWN

WASHINGTON, May 24.—A statement from the republican national committee guardedly criticising the allied governments for their position on the payment of United States claims for maintenance of the American army on the Rhine was withdrawn today at the request of Secretary of State Hughes.

The statement referred to assurances by Lord Robert Cecil when he was recently here that the allies would not compete with the United States and then cited their attitude on the Rhine army costs as evidence of how this "competition" worked out.

LATE RAIN REPORTS.

STERLING, Neb., May 24.—Over an inch and one-half of rain fell here last night. Road conditions are poor and crops are, with the exception of wheat, poor and the corn is found rotting in places.

NTBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 24.—Another driving rain visited this section Tuesday night, that did some damage to growing crops, especially onthe hill sides. The rain fell with such force and in such quantities that huge furrows were dug in the plowed fields, washing out much seed and some young plants that were above ground, and damaging some fields so badly that replanting and in some cases, replowing will be necessary. All streams were filled with water and there is now sufficient moisture to mature crops this season.

WYMORE, Neb., May 24.—Rain continued to fall at Wymore and, according to reports at railway headquarters here, the same conditions prevailed thruout the night and this morning all over the southern part of Nebraska and northern Kansas. From one to one and one-half inches fell from the Missouri river west for a hundred miles. Southren Gage county reports two inches. Superior, Guide Rock, Edgar and Wilcox report three inches. Haddam and Concordia, Kas., show over two inches. oSme hail is reported from DeWitt, oHag and Strang, but it is said no damage was done.

Colored Shoes for Summer.

Glove silk, silk and lisle, and all silk hosiery, continue to be the tan, for sports wear. The wanted coors in sik hosiery continue to be the tan, beige, nude and gray shades, as well as blacks, gunmetal and white. The last-named is coming more and more prominently to the front, both plain and with high-colored clocks. It promises to have a considerable vogue for wear with red, blue and green sandals, in combination with white costumes and millinery or trimming to match the shoes. Some houses continue to report a good demand for men's mercerized half-hose of good quality and in light shades but there is still no sign that these colors will develop to an important extent for general wear.—Dry Goods Economist.

TROOPS START FOR BANDIT CAMP

PLAN TO SEND MEN TO RUHR

German Nationalist Secret Organizations' Proposal.

REDS CONTINUE THEIR RIOTING

Eleven Communists Killed and Seventy Wounded.

Monarchist Groups Believe Communist Uprisings Afford Them Chance to Try Out Armed Groups.

BERLIN, May 24.—Eleven communists have been killed and seventy wounded in fighting the police in Gelsenkirchen, according to advices received here from the Ruhr this afternoon.

Resuming their outbreaks early today, the "reds" smashed into the Mueller restaurant in Munkelstrasse, seizing the food.

Communist patrols were standing guard over the ruins of the police station, which was burned in the first of the riots.

There were small disturbances in the workers section of the city, and many food shops were looted.

Communist leaders were reported preparing for hostilities on a large scale tonight unless the French troops or the "self-defense" organizations of armed Germans who oppose the "reds" are able to prevent them.

Advices from Bochum said strikes were spreading, without incident. Dortmund is quiet but the tension is extreme.

At noon, dispatches from Gelsenkirchen said the communists still held police headquarters. According to these advices, the roof of the building had been burned off. The city hall had not been occupied and the municipal authorities were functioning.

The city officials were conferring with the union leaders anent establishment of a voluntary street police, while the communists themselves had started a "red police."

Two firemen who are among the wounded in hospitals, received their wounds from French bayonets, according to a report from the German safety police.

BERLIN, May 24.—Nationalist secret organizations are considering sending fighting forces into the Ruhr to suppress communists.

These organizations, which are monarchistic, consider that the communist uprisings afforded them an opportunity to try out their well trained armed groups.

The casualties in the rioting at Gelsenkirchen, where mobs swept thru the city, stand at six dead and sixty wounded. During the fighting between police and rioters the French troops stood by and did not attempt interference. The communists captured the main railway station and police headquarters, burning the latter with its records.

LOOK FOR MULATTO GUNMAN

John Whitfield, Wanted for Murder of Policeman, Continues in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 24.—The search for John L. Whitfield, mulato gunman wanted in Cleveland for alleged murder of Dennis Griffin, a policeman, centered in Chicago and north shore suburbs today.

Following a "tip" telegraphed by police of Madison, Wis., where Whitfield was captured but escaped Wednesday night, suburban police were stationed along roads to stop suspicious looking automobiles and question strangers.

Two or three suspects were reported to have been questioned and released as wrong men.

MADISON, Wis., May 24.—Marie Price, fifteen-year-old Fort Wayne, Ind., girl who eloped with John L. Whitfield accused Cleveland murderer today declared she was ready to give up her slayer-lover.

against the girl.

While police thruout Wisconsin sought Whitfield, alleged murderer of Patrolman Dennis Griffin, Cleveland, who escaped Tuesday night immediately following his arrest here, Marie longed to return to Fort Wayne with her mother.

The girl who claimed to be twenty-one, was born in 1909, according to birth records.

Mrs. Arabel Price, mother of Marie will be allowed to take her daughter back home today in case Cleveland authorities fail to bring charges against the girl.

"FATTY" TRIES COMEBACK

Will Appear in Chicago Cabaret June 4, as a Speaking Comedian.

CHICAGO, May 24.—"Fatty" Arbuckle will begin his big fight to "come back" in a Chicago cabaret on June 4.

He will begin where he started years ago before his fame as a movie star was made—as a speaking comedian.

"Fatty" was here today rehearsing his act and preparing for his initial appearance.

"I just want to put over the laughs again and make a living, while doing it," he said.

STILL LOVES CHARLIE

POLA NEGRI

LOS ANGELES.—Pola Negri is still engaged to Charlie Chaplin, though she isn't shouting it with any brass bands playing an accompaniment.

Another temperamental blowup was suspected when Pola appeared minus the sparkler the comedian gave her to seal their engagement. But she allayed the suspicions by declaring that she still loved Charlie, was still engaged to him, and had taken it off because—O, just because.

Anyhow, she says it isn't anybody's business.

TO SUPERVISE BIG PROJECTS

STATE TO HAVE CHARGE OF OPENING OF BIDS.

Million and Half in Paving for Omaha and Douglas—Hotels Entertain Large Group of Contractors.

Bids will be opened at the state house Friday afternoon on Omaha and Douglas county paving projects to cost approximately $1,500,000. Local hotels are housing a small army of contractors and their representatives. While this is not the state's business, the governor and State Engineer Cochran have been invited to supervise the opening of bids and to generally supervise the projects. This is due to trouble in connection with former big paving jobs in and near the metropolis.

Out side of Omaha and Lincoln, North Platte probably will head the list of paving improvement centers. Regardless of troubles over the burning of the court house and alleged embezzlement of county funds, the Lincoln county metropolis will spend approximately $400,000 this year. The Abel Construction company is paving approximately 150,000 yards there. Last year, the same firm paved 175,000 yards in North Platte.

Indications are that the towns and cities of the state will do as much in way of public improvement this year as last. Here are a few of the larger contracts:

West Point—Forty blocks of brick pavement to cost in the neighborhood of $200,000. Roberts Construction company, Lincoln.

Harvard—About 35,000 yards of asphalt paving to cost approximately $100,000. Dobson Construction company, Lincoln.

Falls City—Thirty blocks to cost $100,000. Richie Construction company, Omaha.

Kearney—Approximately $150,000 worth of paving under way. Tyner Construction company, Kansas City.

Grand Island—Doing about $100,000 of paving. Trail Construction company, Grand Island.

Beatrice—Approximately $125,000 in brick and asphalt. Abel Construction company, Lincoln.

Syracuse—Approximately $40,000 brick paving at this time. Cochrane Construction company, Lincoln. Contracts for additional work to be let later on.

Tekamah—About $12,000 worth of paving. Bauer & Johnson, Omaha.

Wet weather is the best promoter of paving, according to a prominent Lincoln contractor. But it is tough on the contractor in that it straight-time men are unable to work while the rain is falling and when the streets are flooded. When roads are good, there is little thought of improving them.

City Engineer Bates, something of an expert in matter of forecasting weather and in keeping of moisture marks, said Thursday that moisture for the year to date is .77 of an inch under normal.

AIRPLANE USES PETROLEUM.

COPENHAGEN, May 24.—What appeared to some as an epoch-making event in the development of airplane and automobile movie power, is the recent successful trip near Copenhagen of an airplane using petroleum as an engine fuel. It was observed by experts who witnessed the test that the plane flew just as well as with gasoline, that there was less vibration and no soot formed, nor was there any self-ignition in the engine which ran 100 less revolutions than normally.

RIVERS REACH FLOOD STAGE

VALLEYS FILLED WITH WATER FROM RECENT PRECIPITATION.

Republican and South Loup Gorged From Bank to Bank With Drainage From Rain Soaked Hillsides.

High floods have been caused by recent precipitation in the valleys of the Republican and South Loup. Reports from territory along these rivers indicate that the flood as is now passing down these streams is unusual even for the spring time when high water is most common.

Burlington reports indicated that the Republican river is out of its banks at a number of places between the west line of the state and Red Cloud. Reports from the South Loup valley indicate a condition there almost as serious as a result of a three days' continuous rain added to by a two inch fall during Wednesday night. The latest fall coming down on water soaked fields and hillsides ran off rapidly and quickly swelled the river.

Beaver City reports that more than eight inches of rain has fallen there in the past three days. This report came prior to the rain of Wednesday night when nearly an inch of water was added to the already bankfull streams.

The Burlington railroad reported the washout west of Benkelman repaired at 3 a. m. Thursday. This is where No. 2, fast eastbound passenger train, went into the ditch because of a washout. Passengers on that train passed thru Lincoln Thursday forenoon, after having been taken back to Brush, Col., north to Alliance and thence to Lincoln. They arrived here but a few hours ahead of No. 2 of Thursday which had gotten thru the washout country.

The Burlington reported small washouts between Orleans and Alma and near Edison. These had been repaired Thursday. They resulted from the excessive rainfall in that part of the Republican valley.

Soft track due to high water was reported from the vicinity of St. Michael, north of Grand Island, and trains were passing over that part of the railroad under "slow" orders.

The St. Francis line of the Burlington was open only to Marion, near the state line south of McCook, heavy rains having swelled the flood in the Beaver valley and caused a washout not quickly repaired because of continued flood troubles.

Heavy rains were reported on the Lincoln and McCook divisions of the railroad during Wednesday night. Lighter rains were reported from the Omaha and Wymore divisions. Nearly half an inch fell at Lincoln while Omaha had only a light shower. The rain extended as far west as Denver but was light in Colorado. North Platte reported only .12 of an inch; Culbertson, .88; Auburn, .65; Red Cloud, .30; Holdrege, .87; Hastings, .58.

The Burlington reported 1.50 to 2 inches of rain from stations on its Lincoln division.

RAINS DELAY CORN PLANTING

Farmers Can't Get in the Fields—Pastures in Fine Shape.

CALLAWAY, Neb., May 24.—A heavy rain fell over this section of the state yesterday and last night.

NORFOLK, Neb., May 24.—More than a week of almost continuous showers, which penetrated the ground more than two inches, has caused a serious delay to the planting of corn in north Nebraska and southern South Dakota. Farmers who have barely finished plowing work are showing much anxiety over fears that late planted corn might be caught by next fail. More land will be put to listed corn this year than ever before as a result of this delay. Heavy ground which has never been listed before is being put to corn in this faster method.

The pastures are in excellent shape as a result of the copious rains. Alfalfa and hay is growing fast.

TABLE ROCK, Neb., May 24.—Owing to the frequent rains of the past few days, corn planting has been very much delayed. A hard rain Tuesday night and another one Wednesday have made it impossible to get into the fields again before Friday or Saturday.

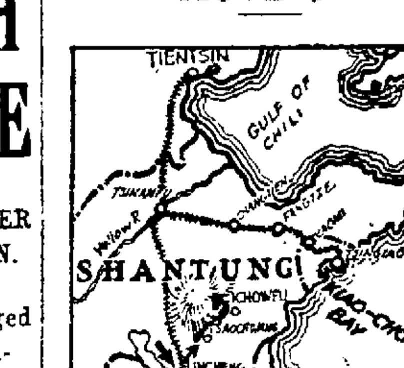

OPEN THE CROOKS FORGERY HEARING

Woman Is Alleged to Have Created a Check on the Account of Mrs. Edwin Meecham, Who Will Give Testimony.

Trial of the case of the state against Catherine Crooks accused in two counts of forging and having possession of a forged instrument was begun Thursday morning in District Judge Stewart's court.

The document which Mrs. Crooks is accused of forging purports to be a check written by Mrs. Edwin Meecham on the City National bank, for $15 payable to Margaret Young. Mrs. Meecham's name is on the witness list as witness for the state.

AN OBJECTION IS WITHDRAWN

COMMISSIONER COWGILL FAVORS HOSPITAL PLANS.

Reverses an Impression That New Structure Not Planned With Due Regard for All Charity Cases.

Possessed now of $100,000 bequeathed by the late R. E. Moore, the city hospital board and the council are prepared to move on with the proposed new hospital. Money is now in hand and a resolution directing City Clerk Berg to advertise for bids will be passed at Monday's meeting. Mayor Zehrung was informed Thursday by J. L. Teeter, president of the hospital board, that the money had been turned over. The contract letting, according to City Engineer Bates, will be on June 14. His estimate of cost is $250,000.

Commissioner of Streets Cowgill, as head of the engineering department, has gone carefully over the plans and has withdrawn an initial objection. His first thought was that the structure is not planned with due regard to charity cases. The thought, however, was based on what he now admits to have been a misapprehension. After talking with prominent members of the medical profession he has decided that there probably will not be the number of charity cases that he would have expected for a city of this size.

"My first impression," he said, "was an apparent lack of housing facilities for charitable cases. I have talked with men of the medical profession and others and have reached the conclusion that the building as planned will offer ample accommodations. The laboratory facilities are complete, the arrangements are fine. On the surface, the proposed structure may appear elaborate in way of accommodations. But the modern hospital, if it does the work, must be more or less elaborate. A hospital is a complicated machine."

Major Cowgill, in addition to being the son of a physician, had occasion in the army to study hospital facilities. During the years of 1920 and 1921, he spent seven months as a patient in the Letterman general hospital at San Francisco. This is one of two large army hospitals.

"We are checking and re-checking details of construction in connection with the new building," he said. "This work will be completed before the end of the week."

BOMB HOUSE OF ATTORNEY

W. M. ELY, AINSWORTH, ESCAPES WITHOUT INJURY.

Home Partly Wrecked Just as He Was Preparing to Leave for Omaha to Try a Case.

The home of W. M. Ely of Ainsworth was partly wrecked by a bomb late Wednesday night, Sheriff John W. Slonecker telephoned State Enforcement Officer Carroll early Thursday.

A great hole was blown in the front of the house and wreckage hurled across the street. All the family were at home at the time, but no one was injured.

Mr. Ely had intended leaving on an early train for Omaha to try a law suit in which Ainsworth parties were interested, and was sleeping on a couch in the front room when the bomb exploded, shortly after 11 o'clock. The bomb is believed to have been of the old German type.

AINSWORTH, Neb., May 24.—A dynamite bomb placed on the front porch of Attorney Ely's house sometime last night exploded about 9:30, leaving a hole thru the wall and into the sitting room where Ely was lying on a couch awaiting the coming of an eastbound passenger train. It knocked an end out of a book case and tore off a few shingles from the roof but otherwise no further damage was done.

A note was left warning Ely to leave town. There are at present no clues available. The note was in a disguised hand.

ISSUE CAMPAIGN REPORT

Poppy Day Nets $993 to Be Spent on Welfare Work for Ex-Service Men.

The following statement of the final report of the American Legion auxiliary poppy campaign has been issued from the auxiliary headquarters:

"Final announcement of the receipts of the poppy sale held in Lincoln last Saturday by the American Legion auxiliary show a total received of $1,239.71. Deducting the cost of poppies and some small expenses of the sale leaves a profit of $992.96 for the use of ex-service men.

"Mrs. C. E. McGlasson is president of the local unit, and is also state chairman of hospital and welfare work. All the poppies sold in Nebraska by the American Legion and its auxiliary which are ordered thru her, are made in the United States.

"The auxiliary extends hearty and generous support and assures that this money will go far towards cheering the sick and disabled of the world war. Some of the money will be used in decorating the graves of our comrades at home and also a part will be given toward the endowment fund for permanent care of overseas graves which is being raised by the national American Legion.

"This will be the only poppy sale put on this year by the American Legion or its auxiliary in Lincoln and they hope every one will remember to wear his poppy on Memorial day in memory of the sacred dead."

OKLAHOMA PASTOR GIVEN VINDICATION

Rev. Mr. Irwin, Who Was Charged With Conduct Unbecoming a Minister at Bathing Suit Wedding, Is Reinstated.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 24.—The judiciary committee of the Presbyterian general assembly today submitted a report vindicating Rev. T. J. Irwin, suspended by the Oklahoma Presbytery.

The controversy over Dr. Irwin started more than a year ago over the sermon he preached at the funeral of Jake Hamon, Oklahoma political leader.

Later the pastor was charged with conduct unbecoming a minister for performing a marriage ceremony in which the principals were clad in bathing suits.

The general assembly approved the committee's report on Rev. Irwin.

The report stated that its investigation showed the bridegroom was not intoxicated as charged, but only in a state of happiness befitting a man being married.

While it was the judgment of the committee that weddings should be performed only under most sacred surroundings a bathing suit ceremony was held insufficient to cause removal of a pastor.

The assembly selected Grand Rapids, Mich., as the meeting place for the 1924 convention.

URGE CHANGE IN CAPITOL

CITIZENS WOULD ALTER EAST AND WEST ENTRANCES.

Delegation Calls Upon Capitol Commission—Fred Humphrey Says Additional Expense Is Not Necessary.

A committee comprising H. Herpolsheimer, R. H. George, Fred Humphrey, W. E. Sharp, J. F. Sharp, H. B. Smith of Gold & Co., and E. L. Smith of Magee's called on the capitol commission Thursday and presented a request for a change in plans for the east and west entrances of the new capitol.

The committee was chosen as the result of several meetings by a group of Lincoln citizens. It has no suggestion for changes about the south entrance or the main entrance on the north. The east and west entrances have been planned with less ornamentation than the committee thinks desirable. The prints which the committee exhibited to the commission show these entrances to comprise a plain open way into the first story or thru the walls of the one story portion known as the terrace. At either side of the openway a stairway leads up the side of the wall to permit access to the top of the terrace and from this paltform entrance can be had into the second story or main floor at several places.

The committee proposes a straight flight of steps at the east and west entrances direct to the top of the terrace and that large entrances be provided from the terrace into the second story or to the main floor. It is alleged by the committee that the plans can be changed now before the entrances are erected without additional expense for building material. The entrances are not to be built, according to present plans of the commission, until the old building has been torn down and removed. About eighty feet of the walls on the east and west will remain uncompleted until the present building is dismantled.

W. E. Sharp of the Lincoln Traction company, who accompanied the committee, has stated that his company would like to change its line which now runs one block on J street between thirteenth and fourteenth. It prefers to run this line south from Thirteenth to H street on Thirteenth street if this is satisfactory to patrons.

Mr. Humphrey was asked about the large growth of trees and shrubs and recent planting of shrubs outside of lots lines on J street wast of the capitol. He said the widening of J street to 100 feet was contemplated and when this is done the view will be less unobstructed.

The meeting of the commission was attended by Governor Bryan, W. E. Hardy, W. H. Thompson and Architect Goodhue. Deputy Secretary Roy Cochran of the department of public works, member of the commission, was detained at McCook by high water. Walter Head of Omaha had not arrived at Omaha.

CRACK DIVISION IS FACING BRIGANDS

Shantung Government Troops Dispatched Toward Mountain Stronghold.

CAMP CONDITIONS INSANITARY

Dysentery Has Appeared Among the Chinese.

POLITICS AFFECTING SITUATION

Policy of Insistent Pressure on Peking Government Made Necessary by Internal Conditions.

PEKING, May 24.—A crack division of Shantung troops is marching toward the mountains strong hold of the Chinese bandits who are holding Americans and other foreigners as hostages.

This sudden military activity was without any explanation from official sources here tonight, but it was assumed the fresh troops would replace those who have been besieging the brigands, in preparation for pushing the offensive against them. It is expected this will result in worse treatment of the prisoners.

A letter from Major Allen, one of the United States army officers held, said the sanitation at the bandit camp is "appalling." The white prisoners, he said, are mixed in with 100 Chinese captives who are not accustomed to cleanliness. Dysentery has already appeared among the Chinese.

Advices from Lincheng say that the government troops surrounding the bandits have been withdrawn five miles, which would permit the outlaws to take their captives into Temple Valley, a much cleaner place than the mountain top.

The bandits failed to carry out their threat to execute two prisoners Tuesday night, couriers said. As a result, the representatives of the powers and the Chinese government alike are convinced the brigands are bluffing when they make threats, and are disposed to attempt rescue of the captives by force.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Chinese presidential politics has seriously complicated the efforts to obtain release of American and other foreign captives, and has made imperative a policy of "insistent pressure" on the Peking government, Jacob G. Schurman, American minister, notified the state department today.

Schurman advised against any change in the present plan of negotiating with the outlaws thru the Chinese authorities, and indicated that the diplomatic corps is not at this time considering military action by forcing troops.

He said the commission decided on by the diplomatic corps as an investigating body will be composed of commanders of foreign troops in China.

VERDICT FOR MISS KNIFFEN

In a Special Finding Jury Says Mr. Linderman Was Guilty of Negligence.

A verdict awarding Miss Helen Kniffen $1,500 damages against Charles D. Linderman, and a special finding of the jury declaring that the defendant drove an auto wilfully, wantonly and purposely in such a manner as to cause the collision which injured the plaintiff, was returned in District Judge Shepherd's court Thursday morning.

Miss Kniffen, who was fourteen years old at the time the suit was filed, brought the litigation thru Margaret Bradden, a friend. She claimed she was riding a bicycle at Eighteenth and G streets, and that as she approached the intersection the defendant, who was making a turn, failed to throw out his hand to show which way he was going. The accident happened July 30, 1922. The damages complained of were physical injuries.

UNI GIRL CAUSE OF PROBE

W. C. T. U. Committee Head Gives Charlotte Baker Credit for Wappich Investigation.

Miss Charlotte Baker, University of Nebraska sorority girl, is given credit for bringing about the investigation of Police Judge Wappich's court in Omaha by the special W. C. T. U. committee conducting the work there, according to Mrs. W. T. Graham, who heads the committee. Miss Baker, who is a member of Alpha Phi sorority and who is much interested in sociology, is a sorority sister of Mary Elizabeth Graham, daughter of the committee head. The two girls were studying to be social workers and Miss Baker became quite enthusiastic over the plan Mrs. Graham suggested for their visiting the jails and courts in Omaha. Accompanied by Dr. Jennie Califas, the three visited the city jail, the county jail and the courts. While in police court the two girls became much interested and urged Mrs. Graham and Dr. Califas to continue their visits. The two women did and the next week Judge Wappich took up his duties as police judge.

"Miss Baker should consider this as her first big social work," Mrs. Graham said," for regardless what happens to Wappich, we have made a big step in putting the police court in order."

STATE BUYS FROM BROKERS

Board of Educational Lands and Funds Unable to Purchase Direct From Village Boards.

The board of educational lands and funds has decided to buy $50,000 of bonds as an investment for the soldier relief fund. The bonds are to be taken by the state board on a basis of 5 per cent. These bonds have not yet been registered in the auditor's office. The sale to the state is made by the Omaha Trust company.

The state board will take $15,000 of a $33,000 issue by the village of Newman Grove. These bear 5 1-2 per cent and are to net the state 5 per cent. They are owned by the Omaha Trust company.

URGE PASTOR QUIT PULPIT

PRESBYTERIAN CONSERVATIVES WANT FOSDICK TO RESIGN.

Suggestion Follows Action of Indianapolis Assembly in Voting Sorrow for Contrary Doctrines.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 24.—Conservative leaders in the Presbyterian general assembly today urged that Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick resign his First Presbyterian church pulpit in New York.

The "suggestion" followed action of the assembly in voting its "profound sorrow that doctrines contrary to the standards of the Presbyterian church had been taught" in New York. Dr. Fosdick is declared to have denied the divinity of Christ."

William Jennings Bryan, conservative leader fighting the theory of evolution, declared the assembly's action "a great victory, wiping out all of my other defeats."

Fosdick directed forces opposing Bryan.

"It would be expected after the vote of the assembly that Dr. Fosdick, in all fairness to the Presbyterian church would vacate his pulpit," Dr. A. Gordon McClennan of Philadelphia said.

"The vote is an answer to the liberal spirit that has sought to undermine fundamentals of our faith."

A report by Dr. McClennan, aligned with Bryan, was adopted by the assembly, called upon the New York Presbytery to require preaching and techings to conform with the system of doctrines taught in confession of the faith.

Bryan today went into the assembly to fight with renewed vigor the Darwin theory.

"The vote is a signal victory for orthodox Christianity and will revive the spirit of those who fight for the integrity of the bible and the deity of God. It opens the way to return to the gospel which the common people will hear as gladly as they heard Christ," he said.

Dr. Clarence E. McCartney, Philadelphia moderator, characterized the action as " a victory for the new testament."

"Thousands have been working and praying for this," he said. "It is only the first skirmish in the battle which will shake the Protestant church. The action shows that the day has not yet come when the Presbyterian church will depart from the intellectual and spiritual principles upon which our fathers founded it."

The edict aimed at Dr. Fosdick was adopted on a roll call vote, 439 to 359 after one of the most desperate doctrinal fights ever waged within the Presbyterian church.

The assembly today formally notified the New York presbytery, in effect, that if Dr. Fosdick remains in his pulpit he must preach doctrines in keeping with principles of the church.

FLO LEEDS INTO SECLUSION

Seeks Recovery From Strain Following Disclosure of Contemplated Action Against Stillman.

NEW YORK, May 24.—"It will all come out at the trial."

With this final message, Mrs. Florence Leeds today left New York to go into seclusion for a while and recover from the strain she has been under since revealing that she is contemplating suing James A. Stillman.

She believes her proposed case will be tried by jury in the fall, and until that time she has determined to say no more.

A suggestion published here today that Stillman had settled $840,000 on her was characterized as an "outrageous falsehood."

"I never got a penny of that sort," she declared. "The allowance of $1,500 a month for little Jay was all, and it has been stopped for more than a year.

"I have nothing further to say. It will all come out at the trial."

At no time during her association with the banker did she derive financial benefit from him, she said. She was not one of the women mentioned as having benefitted by his generosity, Mrs. Leeds declared.

THE VITAL FLAME

A STIRRING SERIAL OF PRIMITIVE PASSIONS

CHAPTER XLVI.

Startling News on the Screen.

The theater foyers were filling now, and gorgeous motor cars disgorging gorgeous women. This was a woman's paradise—New York! See that one in her silks and furs and jewels, the paradise plumes afloat in her marcelled hair! Her clothes alone must have cost a fortune!

Leonie Day had the clothes-craze already, and the appetite grew with eating, so that she'd never rest until she excelled all the other women, no matter what it cost her husband!

Marcella . . . . yes, even despite her acceptance of a thousand pounds from Warwick Treman! . . . . was different. The thought came to him that she'd been 'driven' in some hard way to take that money! Perhaps her father . . . . ?

His heart softened towards her. He had heard the term 'gold-digger' in this town, but somehow he could not apply it to Marcella. How the blonde-haired woman's hard face had melted when she spoke Marcella's name, in the garish little music shop on Broadway!

He reached Leonie's hotel, and telephoned her room, then stood waiting for her in the "lobby" that was so like a crowded street.

She kept him waiting fifteen minutes, under the delusion that the longer a man hangs about for a woman, the more adoring he will be.

"I've been having a royal time," she burbled, emerging from an elevator and floating towards him in a diaphanous green gown. Her hair was done in the very latest style (which did not suit her, Miles considered) and her whole air was artificial.

"I dined in the grill with Mr. Sturtevant, and he would order the most expensive dishes for me. Did you ever hear of 'milk-fed chicken under glass?' It nestled under one of those glass-bells one sees on graves, with 'At Rest' and a few faded flowers inside—" she giggled —"not in my case, of course—"

Miles pretended to listen politely, but already, with at least three hours of this girl's company ahead of him, he was intensely bored. They had been ten days in New York, and the excitement and little attentions she had received had brought out all the foolishness in Leonie.

"Would you care to go to a cinema?" he asked.

She shrugged her shoulders as tho it were a matter of indifference to her spoiled young self.

"Very well. I've seen seven shows, and a cinema would be a change."

They climbed into a white taxicab driven by a reckless youth who deposited them before an enormous building where they had to stand in a long queue and take their turn for tickets.

"But—heavens!—it was worth the wait!" gasped Leonie, when they found themselves at last inside the great auditorium that was crammed to the very roof. "We have nothing—nothing to equal this in London! Look at that regiment of musicians on the stage! Look at the decorations, and the forest of flowers!"

She craned her neck up towards the sea of faces rising, tier on tier, into oblivion.

An attendant found two seats for them—armchairs in which they sank down into the deepest, softest comfort.

And then the orchestra broke out into a trembling melody that was a thing of perfect beauty. To Leonie it meant nothing, but it filled the music-loving man beside her with a breath-taking ache of longing, with a rapture that was bitter-sweet.

When at last the rhapsody shuddered into silence, Leonie turned to him and remarked:

They pay an enormous price for that orchestra, I believe. Seems rather spendthrift, what?"

"I don't agree with you," replied Miles briefly, irritated by the anticlimax. Had the girl no soul? "Anything that is perfect of its kind has a high value."

"Oh, you exaggerate. It was only the overture to an American picture show. I don't call it anything out of the common."

Miles was silent. Gradually he was finding out that the speaker and himself had not one thing in common. How bleak the future looked! In fact, how utterly impossible!

A comedy was shown upon the screen, and then an "educational" film. Following that, a review of recent happenings around the town and coutnry, know as "News of the Week."

A fashion display interested Leonie, but thereafter her attention wandered to some girls in front who were particularly smartly dressed.

"I believe I could copy that cloak—" she was saying to herself when suddenly she was arrested by a stifled "Ah—" from Miles, and—following his gaze which was riveted on the screen—she had a glimpse of something which astounded and disquieted her! For—

Large as life and lovely as the day, her hand possessively upon her father's arm and smiling straight at the audience, the image of Marcella Field, filmed on the deck of an incoming liner, sprang from the screen, the wording reading:

"Horatio Field, eminent archaeologist, arrives in New York on lecture tour, accompanied by his daughter."

THIRD PARTY IS IN VIEW

LAFOLLETTE BOOM BEING ENGINEERED IN EAST.

Meeting of Progressives in Chicago to Consider Railroad Problem to Put It in Thick of Politics.

By Lawrence Martin.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The so-called non-political progressive movement headed by Senator LaFollette is about to become definitely a political movement. The meeting of progressives in Chicago tomorrow to consider the railroad problem will put the progressive group into the thick of national politics.

From now on, whatever the progressive group does will be linked with LaFollette's presidential boom. Instead of being a non-partisan progressive movement, engineered by men of both parties, it will become a LaFollette movement and probably a third party.

There are two reasons for this.

One is that LaFollette will dominate the railroad conference and all succeeding conferences on taxation, immigration, foreign relations and other issues.

The other is that the questions to be considered by the progressives are all certain to be political issues in 1924.

LaFollette's group, when it takes any position at all, will differ with both the republicans and the democrats. Obviously, therefore, the only way the LaFollette idea can be made effective in legislation or government policy is thru the election of LaFollette candidates.

LaFollette has chosen to make his first move on the railroad problem. He knows that it is by far the biggest democratic question of the day. Linked with it, and dependent in a measure on its settlement, are questions affecting general prosperity, taxes, agriculture, manufacturing, coal mining, employment generally. Further, it is a vital question of policy. Upon it the democrats and republicans, capital and labor are widely divided: Here, LaFollette believes, is the great opportunity for the progressive group to present a program that the country will rally to with enthusiasm.

The White Rock filling station at 1601 N street has been sold by John Klinker to the Midland Refining company of ElDorado, Kansas. The Midland company has been operating in a wholesale way for the past four years in the state. By the purchase of the White Rock station they have entered the retail field here. Mr. Klinker will continue as manager of the station at 1601 N.

The Midland Refining company, of which W. S. Skelley is president, is a holding of the Skelley Oil company of Tulsa, Oklahoma, which is one of the large independent oil companies. F. A. GIRLS ROUT THE BOYS.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Girls of two Brooklyn high schools routed the boys in a free fight that followed a ball game.

ROADS SLOWING UP TRAVEL

Not So Bad North and South of Lincoln But Very Bad to the West.

Bus transportation service out of Lincoln was at a standstill Thursday forenoon. Some hope was felt that service might be restored during the late afternoon but that depended on reports of the condition of the roads to be received later. The rain in the Omaha vicinity was light but in the vicinity of Lincoln and York it was very heavy. Road reports indicated that north and south of Lincoln the roads would be quickly restored to travel, but that west of Lincoln they would be slow in getting back to shape.

Lydia Lindgren, grand opera singer, once known as the Swedish nightingale, obtained final papers of American citizenship.

Science Halts Ghost Parade After 25 Years

STILLWATER, Okl.—Ghosts of threadbare notions born in the public mind twenty-five years ago have been at last put to rest. The leading textile experts of the country have proved by experiment that the only cases when modern cleaning methods do not increase the life of clothes are when the materials in the garment are "counterfeit."

Your cleaner studies modern methods if he is a plant-owner. Save your clothes and practice lasting economy. Investigate.

BANKERS SEE A GOOD YEAR

CROPS AND BUSINESS BOTH REPORTED IN FINE CONDITION.

New Banking Law Discussed Pro and Con at Opening Session of Group One Bankers at the Lincoln Hotel.

Reports made by bankers in attendance at the Group One meeting of the Nebraska Bankers' association at the Thursday morning gathering were almost identical in tone. Fine crop conditions exist everything, with wheat furnishing the only dark spot on the map. Deposits have increased in the last year from 15 to 25 per cent while loans have not kept pace. All of the banks are in better condition, and in several counties it was reported that they had more money than they knew what to do with.

The rain and bad weather was expected to cut down the attendance. As a matter of fact it was larger than the average. Few tried to get thru with their automobiles. By noon nearly 200 had registered.

J. H. Catron, president of the Farmers' bank of Nebraska City, presided as head of the group. Rev. Walter Aitken delivered the invocation, and Mayor Zehrung formally welcomed the bankers. Otto Kotouc, cashier of the Home State at Homboldt, responded. Mr. Kotouc said the association had met here so often that coming here was almost the same as a home-coming. He expressed the appreciation of the bankers for the confidence in their good faith shown by the members of the legislature in the almost unanimous adoption of their recommendations with respect to guaranty fund law amendments.

President Daniel Riley of the state association made the main address of the morning. He devoted most of his time to a discussion of the new banking law. He pointed out a number of things that the law does not change or attempt to do, and then stressed its good features. These he explained at length. He said that the receivers' certificates, legally authorized by this law, may not relieve the burden of the guaranty fund, but it has one very excellent feature, and that is that it will spread that burden over a number of years.

Mr. Riley said that the proviso that banks that make excessive loans punishable by loss of charter was intended to put real teeth into the law. Most of the banks that have gone on the rocks made excess loans. He believed that in the future this would not be true.

Mr. Riley said that the law was not all that the bankers desired, but it was the best that could be got under all the circumstances. The bankers realize that the guaranty fund makes them all members of a mutual insurance company, but without any power to inspect their risks. He thought they should have the power to supervise or at least watch the conduct of their partners.

The new law he said was a fire extinguisher. The law they desired would have hidden the matches. But the guaranty fund commission is the salvage corps. He urged that only the best men be selected for this commission. Politics and friendship ought not to figure in the selection. The success of the law depends on the personnel of this commission.

"We are not out of the woods yet by a long way," he said, "but give us a good commission and proper cooperation from the banking department and I have no fears for the safety of the fund for the year."

Mr. Riley said that the law recognizes, as it should, the rights of the public in this fund, but the bankers who foot the bill ought to have more to say about the incurring of these bills than it gives them. He urged those state banks that were talking about nationalizing to wait and see how the new law works out. He urged the bankers to refrain from asking aid of the commission until they just had to have help. It is not a hard time remedy, but an effort to prevent banks that are on the edge from toppling over.

Reports of conditions in Butler county were read by Charles Crossthwaite, from Polk by Mr. Banta; Seward, J. L. Swanson; Richardson, R. H. Huston; Nemaha, E. C. Yont, and Johnson, Frank Dafoe.

The chair named the following committees:

Resolutions—D. C. West, E. C. Yont, John Tulleys, P. L. Hall, jr., and Charles Crossthwaite.

Nominations—H. K. Frantz, George W. Woods, H. W. McLucas.

The members were entertained at luncheon at the chamber of commerce and will be given a banquet tonight by the Lincoln clearing house, at which Dr. H. B. Alexander will speak on the new capitol. At the afternoon session Dr. Joshi of Bombay, India, spoke on "Indian and International Commerce," and selections for the guaranty fund commission made.

MYSTERY WOMAN IS SENT ON

Nebraska City Visitor, Believed Mentally Deranged by Accident, Claimed to Be Wealthy.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 24.—A "mystery" woman caused the officers and business men of this city much trouble and worry today. She was supposed to be mentally unbalanced, but no charge could be filed against her, and after a day of questioning, in which she refused to give much information about herself, she was sent to St. Joseph. She claimed her name was MacPherson, and that she had nursed in the world war, but would not give her first name or where she was from, altho claiming to have traveled in forty-two counties.

The woman was well educated and could talk four languages when she would remain rational enough to talk at all. She claimed to be wealthy but showed no evidence of it. At times she would cry, then laugh and insisted on asking questions. It was learned that she had recently been in Peoria, Ill., where she had been run down by an automobile and seriously hurt but had escaped from the hospital and it is thought the accident there affected her mind.

TWO BILLS MAY CONFLICT

Several Instances Where Two Legislative Acts Amend and Repeal the Same Section.

Secretary of State Pool has discovered that H. R. 127 and H. R. 721 both amend the same section of the statutes and both repeal the same section. Whether the courts will hold that both amendments can become effective is a matter of speculation. If the amendments do not conflict they may be held valid.

H. R. 127, by Hansen of Madison provides for two justices of peace in villages situated in two counties. H. R. 721 by Wilson of Lancaster amends the same section of the statutes by substituting one municipal judge for two justices of the peace in the city of Lincoln. The latter bill was introduced at Governor Bryan's request to cure a defect in a previous bill introduced by Wilson.

This same situation exists in regard to the bill to aid in building a bridge over the Missouri river at Yankton and another bill for the purchase of two bridges over the lower Platte river. Two bills relating to fees of colnty treasuerers for collecting funds are in a similar condition.

INVESTIGATE GARAGE FIRE

Owners of Building at 212 South Nineteenth Directed to Pull Down Walls of Building.

State Fire Marshal C. E. Hartford is investigating a fire which occurred Tuesday night at 212 South Nineteenth street Tuesday night in a garage where the Universal Manufacturing company has been doing business. The marshal said reports to his office show that the fire first started at 11 p. m. and later another started at 4 a. m. Building Inspector Peck has filed with the council a statement showing that he has notified D. H. Daggett, owner, Universal Manufacturing company and J. O. Chapman, doing business as Chapman Motor company, lessees, that what is left of the building is in a dangerous condition. He says that it is prejudicial to health and public safety. The notice requires the pulling down of the walls within thirty days.

PLAYS WILL TONE DOWN

Action Follows Conviction of Thirteen Members of "God of Vengeance" Cast.

NEW YORK, May 24.—A general toning down of Broadway "morality" plays is in prospect today as the result of the conviction of thirteen members of the cast of "The God of Vengeance" on charges of presenting an immoral drama. It was the first conviction obtained under the state penal code in a similar case in years.

Testimony before the jury indicated the play, portraying characterizations in a brothel, might be construed as "detrimental to the morals of youth." Judge McIntyre charged. He said the verdict would have "a wholesome effect" on the stage and was needed.

The defendants, including Harry Weinberger, owner of the piece, and Rudolph Schildkraut, principal, were released under $300 bail pending sentence. The maximum penalty for the offense is three years in the penitentiary and $500 fine.

RAIL OWNERS LAUNCH FIGHT

TRY TO COUNTERACT EFFECT OF PROGRESSIVE BLOC.

Senators, Governors and Middlewest Progressives Gather in Chicago to Talk Lower Rates and Valuations.

CHICAGO, May 24.—Railroad spokesmen today launched a fight to counteract effect of the national conference called by the congressional "progressive bloc" to consider means of obtaining lower railroad valuations and rates.

As leading senators, governors and representatives of the middlewestern progressive group gathered in Chicago today for the meeting, railroad representatives sounded the "keynote" of the opposition.

Speakers presenting the railroads' position address audiences tonight in widely scattered sections of the country. Samuel O. Dunn, editor of the Railway Age, is en route to Pittsburgh, Pa., for such a speech, and H. E. Byram, president of the Milwaukee road, who charges progressives are attempting to force government ownership, speak in Miles City, Mont., tonight.

Two hundred or more advocates of lower valuation and freight and passenger rates, including a dozen governors and as many senators, will attend the opening session of the national valuation conference, instigated by the congressional progressives, tomorrow.

Plan Legislation.

Plans will be considered to put thru congress legislation to compel the interstate commerce commission to lower the $18,900,000,000 valuation now placed on railroads, and on which the 5 1-2 per cent guaranteed return is compiled. Reduction of the valuation, the progressives contend, will make the same return possible with lower rates.

Both Senators Capper, Kansas and LaFollette, Wisconsin, leaders in the movement, which they claim will save the public millions of dollars annually thru lower rates, will attend the conference. Governor swinging the forces of their states behind the project include Davis, Kansas; Walton, Oklahoma; Hunt, Arizona; Dixon, Montana, and Rose, Wyoming. The sessions will be nonpartisan, with about an equal number of democrats and progressive republicans aligned.

Dunn, leading rail spokesman, before leaving for Pittsburgh, launched the railroad attack on the scheme in an exclusive interview.

"The most drastic reduction on valuation which has been proposed would not save the public—with present operating expenses—more than 6 per cent in form of reduced rates," he said. "The reduction in freight rates which has been made since January 1, 1922 already averages 13 per cent on the basis of present business, and is saving the public $730,000,000 annually.

Made Possible Thru Economy.

"This reduction was made possible entirely by economies in operation effected by the railways since return to private management.

"Those attacking the valuation of railways as a means of getting large rate cuts are entirely on the wrong track. It is now taking 78 cents out of every dollar the railways earn to pay expenses. Absolutely any further reduction in rates must come out of an operating expenses reduction. Drastic lowering of valuation will stop railway expansion without giving the public lower rates. A reduction of 7 per cent in present expenses would make possible almost as large a rate slice as a 40 per cent valuation reduction.

"The congressional progressives behind the reduced valuation movement which, they say will be the foremost question before the next congress, plan legislation forcing the interstate commerce commission to lean more toward the original cost of the railroads than the reproduction cost upon which the present valuation is largely based.

FRIENDS NOTICED IMPROVEMENT

Wonderful Results from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Beloit, Wis.—"My female trouble was brought on by overwork. I had worked in stores and had to do heavier work than my strength could stand, and had to be on my feet most of the time. Finally I had to give up this work entirely and stay at home. Doctor's medicine did not give me much relief, and my mother wanted me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took a couple of bottles of it and thought it did not help me as much as it should, so I gave it up to try something else. Nothing I took helped me much, so I finally decided to give the Vegetable Compound another trial and to take enough of it to make sure it would help me. I have taken it over a year now and it has brought wonderful results. I have gained from 90 to 110 pounds and am keeping house now. My friends all notice the change in my health. I will be glad to answer all letters that women write to me about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. W. G. MONSON, 1515 Park Ave., Beloit, Wis.

Mrs. Monson is willing to write to any woman suffering from such troubles.

AFFIRM STILLMAN RULING

New York Supreme Court Rules That Mrs. Anne Stillman Is to Receive $7,500 Monthly Alimony.

NEW YORK, May 24.—James A. Stillman must pay Mrs. Anne U. Stillman, his wife, $7,500 a month alimony and $15,000 counsel fees, the appellate division of the supreme court ruled today.

The decision was made on Stillman's appeal from the ruling of Justice Morschauser February 10, that he must pay such a sum. The appellate division affirmed Morschauser in his appeal. Stillman said he had already given his wife $210,833, counsel fees of $35,000 and additional fees of $12,500.

GERMAN WORKERS' THREAT.

BERLIN, May 24.—The German worker threatens to take the case of General Ludendorff and his white guard reactionaries into his own hands if the government doesn't do it for him.

"If the government does not immediately bring to an end the harmful activities of General Ludendorff and his followers, then the German workers must do it themselves—and they cannot wait much longer" Vorwaerts socialist organ asserts in a bitter article attacking Ludendorff and his "white guard reactionary clique."

BRIDGE OVER RIVER BURNS

SANTA FE STRUCTURE AT FORT MADISON DAMAGED.

Rebuilding May Take Two Months, It Is Estimated, and Transcontinental Trains Are Rerouted.

FORT MADISON, Ia., May 24.—More than 200 feet of the east approach of the Santa Fe railroad mile long bridge over the Mississippi river was destroyed by fire early this morning. The fire, believed to have been started by live coals dropped from firebox of a freight train, started about midnight but was under control three hours later. The loss is not estimated as yet.

All east bound trains on the Santa Fe are being detoured over the Burlington route from Fort Madison to Burlington, Ia., and to Galesburg, Ill. All trains are running from one to seven hours late. Crews were started to work to rebuild the bridge which will take about two months according to an official announcement here this morning.

BIG ROUNDUP OF OLD GRADS

PLANS UNDER WAY FOR REUNION AT UNIVERSITY.

Second Annual Bids Fair to Set New Record for Attendance and Interest of Former State University Students.

Plans for the second annual university roundup are well under way, and members of the committee can now visualize the Nebraska campus swarming with hundreds of old "grads" and new "grads" and other Nebraska folks—a reunion of the biz "Nebraska family." They say "it will be the biggest outpouring of the Nebraska spirit in the entire year and as soon as you feel the contagion creeping into your veins and the old fervor comes back you'll know there is just one place in all the world where you'd like to be on Friday and Saturday, June 1 and 2. That place is the University of Nebraska in Lincoln."

The second annual "Cornhusker Roundup" will be held at the city campus of the university in Lincoln beginning May 31 and ending June 4. The first "roundup" was held last year engineered by Harold F. Holtz, secretary of the alumni association, and with such good results that it was made an annual affair. Mr. Holtz and O. J. Fee, chairman of the general committee with Dean O. J. Ferguson, chairman of the stunt committee, and A. DuTeau, chirman of the advertising committe, are in charge of the arrangements this year. A program of events for five days has been prepared. Beginning with the traditional Ivy day exercises on May 31, the big features will be the laying of the stadium cornerstone on Friday afternoon, June 2, the alumni parade and luncheon on Saturday, the baccalaureate sermon and sacred concert on Sunday evening and the commencement exercises on Monday June 4. Hundreds from all over Nebraska are expected to come to Lincoln for the laying of the cornerstone of the stadium, which will take place at 3:30 p. m. June 1 on the athletic field, and to take part in the events of alumni day, Saturday June 2.

One of the big events on Saturday will be the alumni parade which will leave the campus at 11:45 a. m. A big tent a block long, with booths inside for every class, will be erected at Thirteenth and R streets and every old "grad" will be expected to come to this tent and register. Following the parade the alumni luncheon will be held in the gymnasium at Memorial hall, at 12:15 p. m. Reservations must be in early as there are seats for only one thousand. There will be a ball game in the afternoon and the day will wind up with a dance in the gymnasium at 8:30 p. m.

The program is crammed full of events for the week. They'll be something doing every day and all day long on Saturday.

POOR WEEK FOR GROWTH

Vegetation Did Not Make Marked Progress Because of Too Much Cold Weather.

The following supplement to the corn and wheat region bulletin has been issued by H. G. Carter, meteorologist, temporarily in charge, giving a summary of weather and crop conditions in Nebraska for the week ending May 22:

The week was showery and too cool for the best growth of vegetation. The temperature averaged about four degrees below normal in the eastern part of the state and about one degree below in the western. The weekly precipitation averaged more than an inch in most of the state, but was less than an inch in the southeastern counties. Corn planting is well advanced in southern counties and is making good progress in northern. Some early planted is up in the southern part of the state. A few fields in the central counties were washed out by heavy rains, necessitating replanting. Winter wheat generally made fair advance, but the stand is thin in places, and a few fields have been plowed up and planted to corn. Oats, barley, rye and alfalfa made satisfactory growth despite the cool weather and are in good condition. Pastures show improvement. Slight hail damage was reported locally in the central part of the state. Tender vegetation and fruit were injured somewhat by frost on the 16th. Sugar beets are in good condition. Roads generally are good, altho rough in places.

The weekly rainfall report:

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

Miller & Paine put in operation a pneumatic tube cash system, the first of the kind in Nebraska.

Jasper Hunt and Miss Sue Ella Hall were married at the home of the bride's parents near Bennet, and expected to make their home in Lincoln.

A patriotic demonstration was held at the Oliver theater under the auspices of the Lancaster soldier's relief society and a fund was raised.

The week brought an unusual amount of moisture all over Nebraska, which with the warm weather brought the winter wheat out in fine style.

The senior girls' dramatic club of the high school gave "A Dress Rehearsal," a cantata in two acts, for the benefit of the park and improvement fund.

Miss Hannah Thornburn left for Carthagena, Columbia, to bring back the remains of Harry Hotchkiss, who died there two years before.

LEAVES EMBLEM OF HER HOPELESS LOVE ON THE SANDS AND DROWNS SELF

Marie Keith, French Governess. H. Starr Giddings, Wealthy Lawyer.

NEW YORK.—It is not every day that a man or woman dies for love, sparing the one who has spurned his or her affections. Pretty Marie Keith who followed H. Starr Giddings to this country from France could not bear to go on living after he married someone else, yet she did not wish to embarrass the man she loved with her death. But the wind did not carry away the scraps of the letters which she tore up, and so—she was identified. Altho the meaning of the pierced hearts she drew upon the sand were unmistakable, even Mr. Giddings could not explain the numbers.

INTERNATIONAL PROBLEM FACES NEW PRIME MINISTER.

Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of Exchequer in Lloyd George Cabinet, May Enter the New Ministry.

LONDON, May 24.—With a major international problem confronting him even before his cabinet has been formed, Premier Stanley Baldwin today sought a chancellor of the exchequer to complete his list of members.

Sir Robert Horne chancellor in the Lloyd George cabinet, had a long conference with Baldwin following a quick trip here from Glasgow. This gave rise to reports that Sir Robert would enter the new ministry despite his denial yesterday that he had been offered a post. Lord Curzon will retain the office of foreign minister.

As soon as the cabinet is completed and all formalities are finished, a meeting will be called to consider the Russian reply to the British ten day ultimatum, which will be the first important international business to come before the new ministry.

Evanston Woman Who Retires After Fifty Years' Teaching Makes the Observation.

EVANSTON, Ill., May 24.—"Children have not changed in fifty years. They are no better or no worse today than half a century ago."

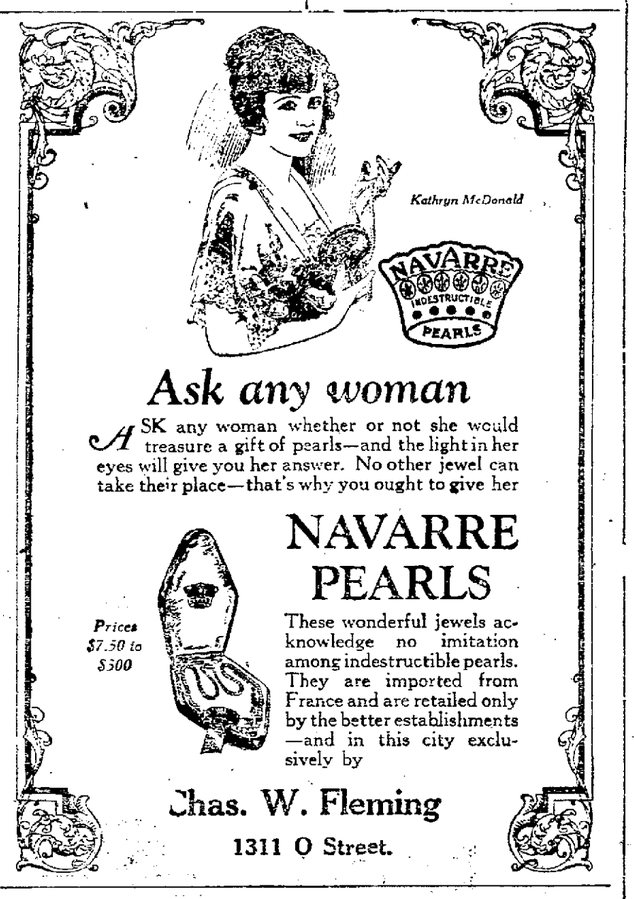

That was the observation of Miss Celia Sargent today who retires after a record of fifty years of teaching.

During that time she taught 2,100 of Evanston's boys and girls. She kept the name and record of each in an ancient volume of ledger type.

"I have kept the pledge I made myself on my first day in the classroom, to give my life to the youngsters of Evanston, and forego marriage," Miss Sargent said.

The business man's gift to the young graduate

From the man who has arrived to the man just starting, Eversharp matched by Wahl Pen is the ideal gift. In beauty of design, this perfect pen and pencil resemble finely wrought jewelry. Yet they are essentially workers—implements of business. And they will last a lifetime.

Eversharp changed America's pencil habits. It was the first successful mechanical pencil—and Eversharp can't be copied. No other pencil has Eversharp's perfect balance. The rifled tip, which holds the lead firmly without slip or wobble, is exclusively Eversharp. The lead index tells always how much lead you have.

Wahl Pen is the greatest modern pen improvement. The barrel is all metal. It holds more ink. It will not crack or split. The threads that hold the cap will never wear out. In gold and silver, Wahl Pen matches Eversharp perfectly.

Give both! Buy these perfect writing partners in the velvet-lined gift box. At your dealer's. Eversharp, $1 to $10—Wahl Pen, $4 to $10. Solid gold at higher prices. Look for the name on the pen and pencil.

Revelations of a Wife

The Way Bess Dean Humorously Won "Her Way."

"NOW, then, isn't that something like?"

Bess Dean turned from the fire which she had just built with an air of triumph fully justified by the leaping, crackling flames in the big fireplace which is Alfred Durkee's pride.

"It surely is," little Mrs. Durkee acquiesced, holding her hands out to the blaze. "Why don't you go into the business, Bess? There are plenty of able school-teachers, but people who can build good fires are rare, and you seem to enjoy doing it so much."

Only one who knew Her Fluffiness intimately could have detected the delicate malice which tinged this little speech. Her aspect is always so sweetly child-like, and she is so genuinely lovable a little person, that one does not realize the capacity for dainty cat-like thrusts which is hers.

To do her justice, she rarely permits herself this feminine luxury unless she has great provocation. But I realized that it was her only weapon against Bess Dean. The girl's adroit pose of friendly helper made it impossible for Mrs. Durkee, the soul of hospitality, to show her any open discourtesy.

I glanced furtively at my former colleague to see if she recognized the thrust Mrs. Durkee had given her. A girl of keen perceptions could not have helped understanding that her hostess saw through her pose of enjoying menial tasks, and Bess Dean's mentality is far above the average. But not the quiver of an eyelash betrayed anything more than humorous appreciation of Mrs. Durkee's quip.

"I'm thinking of using it as a matrimonial advertisement," she drawled. "If any gentleman will furnish the fireplace I'll guarantee to keep the home fires burning."

"You're Always Welcome."

It is impossible not to smile at Bess Dean's drawl and quizzical, crooked eyebrows, and Mrs. Durkee and I laughed heartily at her sally, although both of us would have preferred giving her an old-fashioned switching. And what Dicky calls my "school-ma'am instinct" yearned anew for a ferrule when she danced up to Mrs. Durkee, put her arms akimbo, and spoke ingratiatingly:

"What else kin I do for yous, ma'am? It's strong an' willin' I be."

"Not a thing," Mrs. Durkee returned, laughing at her.

"Oh, don't be tellin' me that now, an' you just in from the city with all your pretty clothes on. Isn't the dinner to get? It's a fine touch I have on peeling potatoes, ma'am, and as for setting a table——"

She blew an airy kiss to the ceiling, then turned briskly toward the kitchen.

"Just go upstairs both of you and take your time. I can get a lot done before that 5:45 train back home."

There was but one response for Mrs. Durkee to make to this brazen bid, and she promptly made it:

"Never mind the 5:45. Why can't you stay to dinner?"

Bess Dean made a deprecatory gesture.

"No reason except that I don't want to become a permanent free boarder. I've been here so many times."

"And you're always welcome," Mrs. Durkee returned with every appearance of heartiness. "Besides, I wouldn't exactly call your entertainment free. You work for it harder than I like to. Mind that you pare the potatoes thin now."

"I'll scrape 'em," Bess promised, laughing, and disappeared into the passageway leading to the kitchen.

But I did not need Mrs. Durkee's gesture of caution to refrain from any comment concerning her until we were safely out of hearing.

Mrs. Durkee Has a "Hunch."

"Where shall I put these suitcases?" I asked. "I only need this bag upstairs, and there's no need of dragging them down again in the morning."

"Put them back in that closet." She indicated one of the built-in recesses which abound in the old-fashioned house. "Alf or Leila will never look in there."

I disposed of the suitcases, and bag in hand, followed her up the staircase to her room, and was amused to see her close and bolt her door.

"Sit down a minute," she said. "You'll have plenty of time. You can put your things in the room opposite mine after a while. But I'm all in after listening to that imp of Satan down there. Did you ever see such gall in your life?"

"But you told her she was welcome." I couldn't keep back the retort.

Her Fluffiness bridled angrily.

"And I told the truth," she said. "I didn't say I welcomed her. But Alfred certainly does. And let me tell you something else, Madge Graham, Dicky's in this thing somewhere. I don't know where. But, believe me, there's some secret between Alfred and Dicky and her that the boys are afraid will get out."

YOUR HEALTH

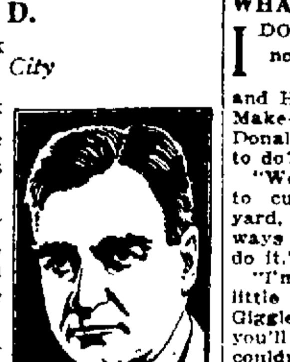

How "Migraine" Comes and How You Can Banish It

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

THERE are diseases and conditions which attack the indoor worker and which rarely trouble those who labor out-of-doors. One of these is migraine.

DR. COPELAND

Migraine is the condition commonly called "sick-headache." The popular name is not entirely happy, because there are many attacks of migraine in which headache is a very minor symptom and, indeed, may be entirely absent.

There used to be a phrase in common use—"biliousness." Doctors don't use this term now, but all of us are familiar with the symptoms which are attributed usually to the liver. As a matter of fact, if there is interference with the circulation of the blood through the liver, there is trouble, and the chief sign may be an attack of migraine. Those who have studied the circulation of the blood say that one-quarter of the entire blood supply is the constant quota of the liver. A quarter of the blood then is moving slowly through this great organ all the time. The more lazy we are and the more inactive, the slower is this liver circulation. Somehow or other the speed of the blood movement here determines the physical condition of the individual.

How you are going to be through the day is indicated to some degree at least by the way you feel on awakening in the morning. If you get up with a "dark brown" taste in your mouth, with no appetite for breakfast, and with a general feeling of depression, you are likely to have an attack of migraine if you are subject to it.

The most pronounced and disagreeable sign of migraine is the peculiar eye symptom which ushers in the attack. This begins with slight blurring of sight.

At first you cannot decide exactly what is wrong. Then a blank spot is found in the vision. As you look at the wall, a certain part of it is lost. Looking at the face of a friend you cannot see all of it—one ear may be gone or an eye. Looking at the middle of the face of your watch, you cannot see certain numbers on the dial. Perhaps all the figures from one to six are gone, or from seven to twelve.

The lost field gradually widens until the symptom is at its height. Then the blindness gradually fades away, to be replaced by a peculiar dazzling. There are alternate zig-zag lines of black and white. It may be an hour or two before the dazzling is gone and the vision is normal.

By this time there is a one-sided headache or a general aching, with nausea, and, in extreme cases, vomiting.

Worry, late hours, lack of sleep, over-smoking, poor ventilation, over-eating, constipation and lack of exercise are the chief exciting causes. Intestinal indigestion, menstrual disturbance in women and over-use of the eyes, are other factors of importance.

There is a certain periodicity in the recurrence of the attacks. It is as if storms gathered and broke. You must correct your manner of living by a long and rigid observance of all the rules of hygiene.

Migraine is the evidence of your self-neglect and it is only by attention to your slighted body that you can hope to escape these unhappy spells.

Good Night Stories

WHAT HAPPENED TO LAZY CRAB

"I DON'T care," Donald pouted, "I'm not going to do it."

"Do what?" asked a merry voice, and Happy Giggles, the little elfin from Make-believe Land, hopped up beside Donald. "What is it you don't want to do?"

"Work," replied Donald. "I just hate to cut the grass and clean up the yard, and Mama knows it, and she always picks out Saturday to ask me to do it."

"I'm very much afraid you're a lazy little boy, Donald," laughed Happy Giggles. "The first thing you know you'll be covered—but, of course, that couldn't be, because you don't live under the water. But without any joking, it did happen to a friend of mine." And before Donald had time to ask any questions, he found himself standing beside Happy Giggles down on the bottom of the ocean.

A great big fish passed them and nearly upset Donald with his tail.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," he said, politely. "I didn't mean to bump into you. You see, I'm in a hurry to get my work done. My! Happy Giggles, have you seen what happened to Lazy Crab?"

"No, but I heard he was in a terrible state," replied Happy Giggles. "We've just come down to see him. Where will we find him, anyway?"

"Oh, poor fellow," sighed Mr. Fish, shaking his fins. "He's so covered now he can hardly walk. But, goodness knows, it serves him right. My, but he was lazy, I tell you. They'll never get a chance to get hold of me that way." And away Mr. Fish hurried as fast as his fins would carry him.

"I'm Covered with Barnacles!"

"What in the world ails him, Happy Giggles?" Donald whispered.

"We'll have to go and see," said Happy Giggles, shaking his head sadly. He took Donald's hand and ran over the sands until they came to a stone where Lazy Crab sat in the shadow.

"Well, well, Lazy Crab," laughed Happy Giggles merrily. "How is the world treating you?"

"Oh, dear, oh, dear!" cried Lazy Crab, the tears running down his funny wrinkled face. "I'm so dreadfully unhappy. Look at me! What has happened to me? I'm covered with barnacles."

"Too bad," sighed Happy Giggles shaking his head sadly. "I'm afraid it's because you sit still so much. You know, barnacles make it a rule to cling to anything they can get hold of."

"But how can I get rid of them?" cried Lazy Crab. "Is it because I'm lazy that they have made a home on me? See! There are two thick rows on my back, and now I can hardly walk. Oh, Happy Giggles, if you'll just rid me of these pests I'll never give any one a chance again to say I'm lazy." And Lazy Crab cried again so hard that Happy Giggles felt sorry for him and with his magic cleaned all the little barnacles off the lazy crab's back.

My! but he was grateful, and, believe me, from that day to this, when you see Mr. Crab you'll find him busy doing something.

And, as for Donald, he never forgot how funny Mr. Crab looked and it served as a lesson to him, for now he is a busy little fellow, always doing something for some one.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am 25 years old and have been going with a friend for almost a year, until just lately.

Of course, this friend lives out of town, but he always comes to this town every week. And when he would get in he always would call me up until the last two weeks.

I have been told he was in town and he never called me up. He came one week and found me with another friend. I don't know whether or not he liked it. But he told a friend of his and then he told me that he did not want to interfere if I had steady company.

I feel hurt over this, for I think lots of him. I was not going with this other friend steadily. I sometimes think he told his friend that just for an excuse. I only hope he does not think I am going with the other friend steadily, for all I want is to have lots of friends. I hate to lose his friendship.

WORRIED.

WORRIED: Write the young man a note inviting him to call on you the next time he is in town. Then you can find out what the trouble is.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens. I am in love with a young man one year my senior. I love this young man very dearly. He has to'd me many times of his love for me, although in his last letter he accused me of flirting with another young man. This made me very angry and our friendship was broken. What would you advise me to do? I would like very much to have our friendship renewed.

ANXIOUS BLUE EYES.

ANXIOUS BLUE EYES: Write to the young man and say that you would like to be friends again, but that if you do renew your friendship, he must not think that he can monopolize you entirely. You are not engaged, and it is much better for you to have more than one young man friend.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl 17 years old. I know a man in a neighboring town and he calls to see me often. He loves me and wants me to marry him. My parents want me to marry him, but I do not love him. Kindly advise me what to do.

JIMMIE.

JIMMIE: Don't marry a man you do not love, my dear. Surely if your parents realize that you are not in love with this man they will not urge you to marry him.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl 18 years of age. I go with a young man one year my senior. I love him very much and he says he loves me.

There is another young man who loves me very much, but I don't love him. He has asked me to meet him and come to his home. Now, I like his people very much. Would it be proper to meet this young man and call at his home?

WONDER.

WONDER: It would be entirely proper for you to call on this young man's family.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

The Reason Mme. de Pompadour Still Lives in French History.

IN Paris, during the reign of Louis XV, a beautiful young girl graced the salons of many smart hostesses in Paris. She was not only beautiful, but brilliant. The great men of the time—some of those who were even then planting the seed for the Revolution—found delight in her charming society.

This unusual girl was the daughter, some said, of a butcher. Others claimed that her father had been a sutler in the army and had come to a bad end through dishonesty.

However, she was adopted and brought up by Le Normant de Tournehem, a rich farmer-general. She was given every opportunity of education and held a dignified place in society.

Voltaire once met her at a reception. So impressed with her vivacity and charm was he that on returning home he wrote in his journal:

"She confessed to me that she had a secret presentiment that the King would fall in love with her and that she had a violent inclination for him."

Perhaps it was a presentiment and perhaps it was a wish, but at any rate, this clever young woman laid her plans according to her desire.

Her first move was to marry Le Normant d'Etioles, joint-heir with her to her foster-father's estate. She did not love him, although he deeply loved her.

But this gave her the opportunity to establish herself independently in society and to dazzle it not only with her beauty, but with the grandeur of her entertainments.

To her salon came all the great men. But she had difficulty in meeting His Majesty, King Louis.

Finally, one night at a fancy-dress ball, she was presented to him. But it was only for a few hours that she held him interested. However, he did not forget her.

Louis's great complaint was "I am bored." After hearing this one day for perhaps the thousandth time, his valet suggested that the King send for the pretty Mme. d'Etioles.

Her hour of triumph had come. She remained with the King as his mistress until the day of her death.

Louis immediately gave his new flame a title—the Marquis de Pompadour.

Power was what this ambitious woman wanted—not love. And how she worked for it!

Her influence over the King was not merely a physical one. She held him by her wit and her adeptness in politics. So hard and well did she work with him over affairs of state that he became absolutely dependent on her.

When signs of being bored with her evinced themselves in her royal lover, Pompadour encouraged him in his debauchery.

Rather than have a younger favorite replace her, Pompadour established the Parc aux Cerfs, or Stag's Park, where she assembled all of the beauties of France to entertain their monarch.

Nor did she stop at this. Pompadour herself was a great actress. The brightest literary geniuses of the day—among them Voltaire—wrote plays in which she featured herself.

The "ennui" of her King was Pompadour's sole fear. She exhausted herself trying to keep him from being bored. Pompadour expended thousands of fortunes to arrange gorgeous fetes at Versailles for his delight.

All the while the people of France were murmuring and fearful of her extravagance. But always, on hearing of the discontent, Pompadour coldly remarked: "After me the deluge."

The deluge did flood France in the reign of the next Louis in the form of the Revolution.

Pompadour did much to encourage art and literature, but she herself, although artistic and highly cultured, centred her mind on internal politics, and in these she was mistress.

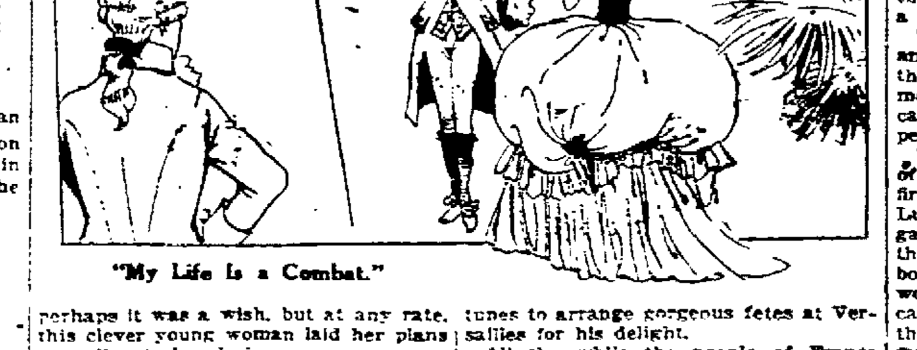

But her struggles told on her early in life. When she was 42, she said:

"My life is a combat."

And the combat was too much for her strength.

On April 15, 1764, Pompadour was told that her end was near. With great pride and care, she adorned herself in her full court dress and died fearlessly.

It was only death which could remove Pompadour from the palace and from the position which she had fought for and successfully maintained as "the power behind the throne."

"My Life Is a Combat."

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Do You Know These Traditional Wedding Customs?

"Happy is the wooing
That is not long in doing."

EVERY one loves a bride, especially a June bride. For in June romance is in the air like the perfume of the roses—no wonder it is called the wedding month. The wedding-ring is an old institution, the first reference being made to it in the Bible in Genesis iv. And down through history the symbol was made in turn of iron, copper, brass, sedge, silver, gold, and in the platinum and diamond hoop familiar today.

The ring finger has remained the same, chosen in the beginning as the least active finger and for that reason the safest on which to wear the ring. There is a sentimental tradition the third finger contains a blood vein that connects directly with the heart.

"As your wedding ring wears
You'll live out your cares."

The origin of the wedding veil is a matter of dispute. It is said that the Crusaders brought the idea to western Europe, while others say that the old yellow veil in which all Greek and Roman brides were swathed started the fashion. During its journey from the path of history it has grown more dainty and fascinating. Orange blossoms to hold its filmy folds have taken the place of olive or myrtle leaves for the head-dress that is worn but once in a lifetime.

The veil in olden days was laid aside and the housewife's cap replaced it as the symbol of matronly dignity. But modern women will have none of the cap and it has disappeared from this period of history.

The bridegroom's gift is the remnant of the custom of the "dow purse," or first instalment of the wife's pin money. Luck was supposed to lurk in the yellow garter and the blue bow, while "something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue" is still worn by the bride who takes every precaution to insure her happiness, even though the sun is shining upon her wedding day.

The month of May has always been looked upon as unlucky, while an ancient ecclesiastical law forbide marriages in Lent and between Rogation and Trinity Sundays. "Marry in Lent and you'll live to repent," and "Marry in May and you will rue the day" are time honored sayings.

The real wedding cake is not a fruit cake, as is generally supposed, but a cake made of several cakes put together in steeple form—each one smaller than the one below, and held together with almond paste and sugar icing. The cake itself is a white cake or of the silver or angel variety. This makes a very elaborate-looking cake and for the bride who cuts the cake with her husband's or father's sword, as is frequently done at military weddings, it calls for a good deal of skill to make a clean cut without disturbing the tower-like structure.

The custom of throwing old shoes after the happy pair really meant the casting off of frivolity rather than a good luck symbol, as is generally supposed. Rice throwing is the symbol of "increase and multiply," a fact that may account for the modern bride's adoption of confetti instead. The honeymoon in different lands lasts from one week to 30 days.

Wedding suppers have always been in favor and the decorations have followed the fashions of each period. Today the wedding hour, social position of the bride and groom, the formality or informality of the function decide what sort of refreshments shall be served. There was never a time when people were freer in such matters than they are today.

The formal function may be a breakfast reception with elaborate refreshments, an outdoor affair with the refreshments served in a tent on the lawn, or a wedding cake and coffee in the rest room of the church, served for the two families only.

Centrepieces for wedding tables are very varied and run the gamut from the towering cake to a huge satin slipper filled with orange blossoms. There are baskets of flowers, tall castles built of nougat, large and majestic ships sailing on glass lakes—the ships made of sugar and loaded with bonbons, a garden made of candy flowers, huge wedding bells made of satin and gold lace and dozens of other elaborate things. June roses are the favorites for the June bride, who saves the petals for a wedding rose jar with which to perfume her new home.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Delightfully Simple Frock Combining Pomegranate, Yellow and Sand.

MADAME has been having a week of chiffon.

"There are always weeks devoted to housecleaning and to wrapping better parcels and to selling gingham dresses and such things, so I don't see why we can't have a chiffon week all our own," she laughingly declared.

Then the designers set to work to turn out the most exquisite chiffon creations they could achieve. That was what Madame had asked for, and she has a way of making people aim to please.

Madame had invitations sent out to her customers who she thought would be particularly interested.

We had a session of fittings.

"I feel as if I had spent at least a lifetime standing around in a silk under-slip while soft yards of chiffon were being draped around me," Pam declared.

The fittings weren't long, however, as the dresses were soft and draped, and didn't require much exact fitting.

Finally the day for showing them arrived.

"There are a lot of responses," Pam announced, peeping through a curtain into the salon.

From without, came the pleasant chatter of voices, punctuated by occasional soft laughs. Madame's clients always seem to have time to talk and laugh.

We spent the next half-hour or longer strolling in and out in the lovely chiffon frocks.

Clients kept asking the names of certain dresses they liked and jotting them down, and we models were much interested to see which one would get most inquiries.

The prize rather happened to be "Gossamer," a model for which I had had the fitting. I was very proud that the one I wore should attract the most attention.

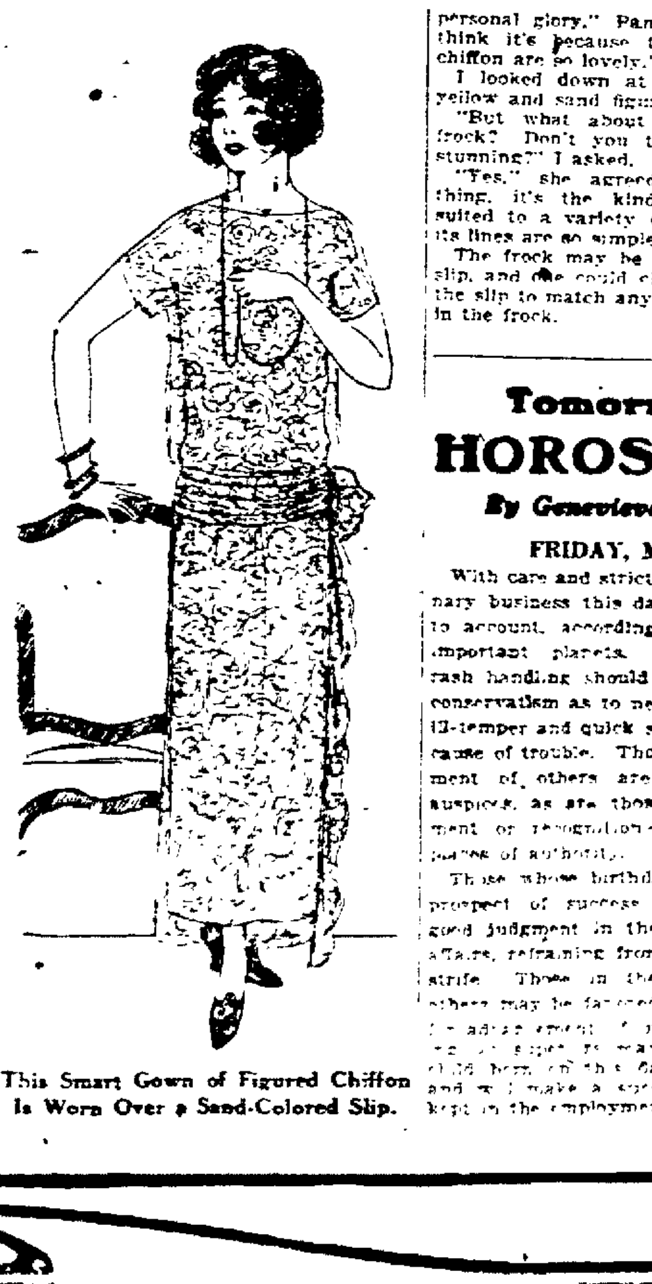

"I don't want to detract from your personal glory," Pam declared, "but I think it's because the colors in that chiffon are so lovely."

I looked down at the pomegranate, yellow and sand figures admiringly.

"But what about the lines of the frock? Don't you think they're very stunning?" I asked.

"Yes," she agreed. "And another thing, it's the kind of frock that's suited to a variety of figures because its lines are so simple and charming."

The frock may be worn over a sand slip, and one could change the color of the slip to match any of the colors used in the frock.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, MAY 25.

With care and strict attention to ordinary business this day may be turned to account, according to the sway of important planets. Speculation and rash handling should be avoided, with conservatism as to new ventures. Also ill-temper and quick speech may be the cause of trouble. Those in the employment of others are under excellent auspices, as are those seeking preferment or recognition from persons in places of authority.

Those whose birthday it is have the prospect of success if they exercise good judgment in the management of affairs, refraining from speculation and strife. Those in the employment of others may be favored. All should push for advancement, if ordinarily deserving, as superiors may be friendly. A child born on this day will be clever and will make a success, especially if kept in the employment of others.

In an article on "Historical Houses" a writer calls attention to a curious relic of the days when the pastor of Northumbria, Eng., was compelled to live in a fortified house if he wished to preserve his worldly goods from the plundering band of moss-troopers who were continually crossing the Scottish border and raiding the homesteads of defenceless villagers. One of the best examples of these fortified rectories, originally built in the 14th century, still exists in Rothbury, Eng. It is described in a list of fortlets in 1542 as a "toure and a litle barnekin, being the mansion of the parsonage of Rothbury." It has walls 11 feet thick at the base and 3½ feet at the top. It has turrets at the corners, and a chamber with a stone door into which the rectors drove their cattle at night or on the approach of the raiders.

APPEALS FOR CITIZENSHIP

HARDING ASKS INDIVIDUALS TO RESPECT THE LAWS.

Courts Cannot Insure Justice, Says President, If People Strive for Special Privileges.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—In an appeal for better citizenship, President Harding called upon the American people today as individuals to have respect for law in the interest of carrying out the ideal of the preamble to the constitution, which sets as one aspiration of the republic the establishment fo justice.

The elaborate machinery of the courts cannot insure justice, the president said, "if some individuals shall strive for special privileges for themselves, or seek to establish subtle forms of injustice not specifically prohibited by the letter of the law."

Mr. Harding's appeal for a more law abiding nation was delivered in a speech at the convention of the National American council, a good citizenship organization, which is soon to begin a new "citizenship program" of national scope.

The president said that the country needs "to find a commanding and dominating national interest" to restore the solidarity that existed during the war and which, he asserted, has been noticeably missing since then.

In the preamble of the constitution, he said, "the fathers of the republic set forth the objective of this great democracy. There is the chart of our course. There is the inspiration to every effort to make one and all of us better citizens.

"There is no need to cultivate in every citizen a sense of responsibility of personal concern for the operation of this mechanism (of state and national law). The national ideal stated in the preamble will be attained by us as a nation in no greater degree than we shall attain it as an aggregate of individuals.

"Consider one phrase in the preamble, 'to establish justice' in our mechanism of government, we have set up an elaborate organization to insure this: the federal and state judicial systems. But the courts cannot insure justice to all the community if some individuals shall strive for special privileges for themselves or seek to establish subtle forms of injustice not specifically prohibited by the letter of law.

Task Impossible.

"The task of the courts will be slow, difficult, sometimes impossible, unless citizens subject to their jurisdiction are sincerely desirous to do justice and to see it done in the affairs of day by day life."

The president said that it was a common statement that democracy is on trial.

"I have some misgivings" he said, "about whether democracy is on trial, but I am very sure that in these times it is experiencing a good many trials. Further we will be quite safe in admitting that many of the institutions which have been set up in the hope that through them te best aims of democracy might be realized, are on trial. We will make no mistake if we confess that the attitudes and conduct of many people who profess devotion to democratic institutions are on tral.

"There is much question of ways and means and institutions, but as to the fundamentals, it certainly can be said that never was our country more firmly committed to the broad ideals and purposes of democracy, and never before were so many other countries and peoples seeking to establish like commitments.

"Human society has never faced a more complex or difficult question and it is therefore of first importance that all Americans be brought to understand the underlying purposes of this commonwealth and to fix firmly in their hearts the determination to maintain institutions capable of progressive evolution and development, along the lines of our fundamental principles."

To this end, Mr. Harding continued, there is need of national education in the fundamentals of Americanism. He said that in the past, those who have been ready to enter upon rash experiments have been checked by opposing minds, but there is danger of deadlocking the wheels of progress by relying on that sort of protection, he warned. A sane middle course that will command the support of the majority should be charted, he said.

An Ideal State.

Every government unit must be in miniature an ideal state, and all must then be united by "potent bonds of sympathy, interest and common purpose."

He promised the assistance of the government to the council's citizenship efforts, thru the bureau of education, the federal board for vocational education, the departments of agriculture, labor, war and navy, and the federal council for citizenship training.

State and municipal governments, he said, have important duties in this connection and, above all, the individual citizen should unite with the organizations that are leading the way, in an effort to bring about a finer type of citizenship.

"The result of individual and collective effort to make this democratic program a moving force in our lives and conduct will extend beyond our own borders," Mr. Harding said. "The nation which knows the truth and which, amid the turmoil of this age has discovered how 'to insure democratic tranquility' can point the way to world peace, not by force of arms, but by living the precepts of representative democracy's true platform in all its dealings with mankind."

Has Tommy Gibbons Uncovered the One Way to Beat Champion in Shelby Fight?

FORMER TRAINER OF DEMPSEY KNOWS IT

Early "Experting" Gives Challenger Only a Long-Shot Chance to Win —Nobody Knows How Gibbons Will Fight.

NEW YORK, May 24—Taking the consensus of opinion as having some facts back of it, Tommy Gibbons has only a long-shot chance to win the heavyweight championship when he meets Jack Dempsey on July 4. The game that Gibbons will play in the hope of cashing in on that outside chance is causing much speculation and discussion around here.

Opinion is widely divided on the plan of battle which Gibbons should carry against the champion to make the best of his chances.

Dempsey, some point out, is a dynamic fighter who is superlative for seven or ten rounds, and if he does win, greatly his effectiveness is diminished by his own exertions.

Missing Lowers Morale.

Those who expound this theory favor Gibbons if he should go out and box with Dempsey at a fast clip for six or seven rounds and just do enough leading to make him miss and miss.

The act of missing is not only a known reducer of physical strength, but it is a most powerful physchological factor in decreasing morale.

Being faster and more clever than Dempsey and having an estimable punch along with it, Gibbons might be able to stand off the champion and get him slowed up enough to find an opening.

Others think Gibbons has only the gambler's chance to stake everything on one punch and take the risk of winning by a knockout or getting knocked out. They figure the only chance Gibbons has is to tear into Dempsey and get over that one punch.

These sharpsters discount the value of a waiting battle and they point out that Carpentier tried to box with Dempsey and was so worn out by the digging he took to the body that he didn't have the force in his punch when his big chance came.

Cage was Flashy Boxer.

This theory is sound in that Carpentier did try to box Dempsey, but he didn't, because he didn't know how. The Frenchman was flashy on his feet and possessed a lot of fancy steps and motions, but he never was a boxer. His main idea was to stay away from Dempsey and the only way he had of doing that was running.

Carpentier had only one punch, a right-hander, and Dempsey and everyone else knew it. He couldn't protect himself in close, and Dempsey knew it.

Gibbons can box better than any heavyweight in the ring. He can protect himself and fight in close as good as Dempsey, and he can punch and hook with either hand.

All in all, the lessons that could be applied to Carpentier's logic or lack of logic in the Dempsey fight, do not fit the Gibbons case.

No one perhaps will know how Tommy will fight the champion until the bout starts. No one knows now but Gibbons, and it is a cinch he has it all planned out and it is a pretty good bet that he is not far wrong.

Gibbons is Own Adviser.

Gibbons handles and advises himself. He is a smart fighter, and he has not been watching Dempsey for amusement.

There might be a way of beating Dempsey that has been overlooked by the critics. One of Dempsey's former trainers says there is that one way.

First Golf Tourney at Antelope in June

The first golf tournament of the season for Antelope golf club members will start June 15, Hale Clark, club professional announced Wednesday. It will be an eighteen-hole handicap affair. Between now and the opening of the tournament each contestant must hand in five score cards in order that their handicap may be determined.

There is some question, according to Clark, where the annual city tournament will be played. It is possible that this event will be held over the Antelope course.

There are ten sand greens completed now and the remaining eight will be installed within the next two weeks. Among the Antelope golfers who have been showing the most consistent form this spring are Joe Brown, Joe Tucker and Roy Gilkerson.

There are now 160 members of the Antelope club. By the middle of August a membership of 225 is anticipated. Many golfers who play over the course do not hold membership cards, desiring rather to pay the twenty-five cent greens fees each time they play.

Over 500 Hi School Athletes at Chicago

CHICAGO, May 24—Five hundred and twenty-four of the star high school athletes of the country will participate in the annual national interscholastic track meet opening at Stagg field Friday. They represent 165 schools.

In addition to the high school representatives, 143 are registered from the academy division.

The largest team was entered by Washington high of Cedar Rapids, with 26 men.

Many of the entrants were on the ground today preparing for the test. California's delegation of twenty-five worked out Wednesday and again today.

WAS KING OF WHEAT; NOW HE'S KING OF THE "CAKES"

CHICAGO, May 24—James A. Patten, one time wheat king, paid $2,500 to escape witnessing a prize fight here last night.

Scheduled to speak at a meeting held in the interests of the Jewish charitable campaign, Patten, on arriving, saw a roped arena.

Abhorring prize fights, he handed the chairman a check for $2,500, and left hurriedly, without making the speech.

Colonel Huston May Take Fling With the New York Giants

BABE'S HOMER WINS GAME

Babe Ruth, Yankee slugger, crossing the plate after he had knocked out a home run. The smash came in the fifteenth inning in a game at Chicago. One was on and the clout clinched the game for New York. It gave the American league champs their ninth straight win.

NEW YORK.—At the pace the Yankees are going it begins to look as tho the American league bunting will again be in the New Yorkers' possession long before the season ends. On Tuesday, when the Yanks had closed a series with the White Sox by taking every game, the league champions had won nine straight games and twelve out of the last thirteen. And this despite the fact that Babe Ruth is lagging behind in the race for home run honors. Tho the Bambino is not cracking out any four base drives he is slipping over a number of doubles and delivering in the pinches. In the final game of the series with the Sox Ruth lambasted the ball in the fifeteenth inning for a home run. One man was on and the Yankees won when the Sox failed to come thru in their half.

MICHIGAN ATHLETE LEADS ILLINI TEAM IN BIG TEN

URBANA, Ill., May 24.—By a queer twist of fate a Michigan athlete will lead the University of Illinois track team when it invades the University of Michigan June 1 and 2 to defend the track championship of the conference which the Illini have held for three years running.

Paul C. Sweet of Battle Creek, Mich., track quartermiler, is the Illinois leader. Sweet was a member of the quartermile relay quartet which established a new world's record in the Drake games. The dopesters figure that the race for big ten honors is between Michigan and Illinois this time. The Illini under Coach Harry Gill have never lost a dual track meet to the Wolverines although this year their dual meet victory over Michigan was an upset.

Firpo Found Living In Newark Cellar After Arriving Here

Friends Told Argentine Giant That Trainer Was Trying to Double-Cross Him—His Early Career.

By Henry L. Farrell.

Chapter II.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Gratitude is one of the many virtues that is not an outstanding characteristic of the fighting game. Selfishness and greed have made the "double-cross" almost the native tongue of the prize ring and one of the outstanding victims of the present days in Jimmy De Forest, the wisest old handler of boxers in the game.

De Forest took Jack Dempsey when he was a crude product, with only a little natural ability, and worked with him for two years, during which he transformed him into one of the ring's most formidable fighting machines.

The day after Dempsey won the heavyweight championship from Jess Willard, back in 1919, De Forest was "given the gate" out of the Dempsey camp. Jack Kearns, the new champion's manager, said De Forest was trying to get Dempsey away from him.

The man who had made Dempsey champion finally landed a job as trainer and boxing instructor at an athletic club in Newark and to those who, at times, offered sympathy to him for his bad break, Jimmy often replied:

"They keep coming up all the time. There's always a prospect around someplace and maybe I'll have the good luck to dig up the next champion."

Found In a Cellar.

One day, about a year ago one of the gentry peculiar to the boxing game, who neither sows nor reaps, came to De Forest with the word that there was a fine looking heavyweight, big strong fellow, living in a cellar in the tenement district of Newark. "A spiggity," he added as a detail.

"No chance. Never was one of those who could fight. Strong, that's all, every one of them, but no heart," De Forest replied.

When this prospect was urged upon him from other sources, De Forest finally decided that there might be something in the stories and he sent word to have the "hope" brought up to him.

Luis Angel Firpo, frightened and suspicious, acting as if a trolley was about to run over him at any moment, came up to the gymnasium to undergo the process of being looked over by a man said to be the one who could get him big things in the business.

De Forest was immediately struck with the possibilities in the huge fellow and he agreed to work with him. He appreciated the difficulties resulting from the necessity of transmitting his instructions thru an interpreter, but he found Firpo quick to get on to the sign language and things went fine for a while.

Agonies of Shower Bath

He included Firpo to move out of the cellar and take up an abode where he would have light and air. The worst difficulty he experienced in his early work was to get his big pupil broken to the agonies of a shower bath. Firpo had never been under one and he thought it was an instrument of modern torture. De Forest almost had to force him under the spray when he had finished work and he knew that his charge was "cheating" by slipping out of the prescribed ducking after he arose in the mornings.

Five [illegible] went well for weeks until De Forest noticed that Firpo was not carrying out the instructions that were given to the interpreter. Jimmy couldn't understand it for a long time until one of the members of the club who could understand Spanish, told him that the interpreter was not relaying him the instructions offered.

Firpo is Suspicious.

De Forest learned later that Firpo's friends, many of them waiters in Brazilian coffee houses, which were then the rage in New York, had told Firpo that De Forest was a friend of Dempsey's and that Jimmy was teaching him wrong so that Dempsey could beat him easily when they met.

Relations became strained and they were finally broken when De Forest, acting thru self protection, broached the subject of a contract. Firpo said he wanted no manager and he would sign no papers. De Forest pointed out that he was getting nothing for his services but promises for the future, and that he would not proceed without assurance of the protection of his interests, but Firpo remained obdurate and they split.

Firpo then went out and got several small fights for purses running from $150 to $500, but he made only an ordinary showing and he was making no progress under the instruction of friends, who knew how to carry a dozen cups of coffee without spilling a drop, but didn't know even how to wrap up a hand.

The giant then went home to cash in on his glory and he did well in South America financially.

Tex Rickard, keenest of all showmen, then saw the possibilities in Firpo and when Rickard got a hand in it, Firpo got his start.

The next chapter will deal with his real start.

Husker-Aggie Net Meet Is Canceled

The dual tennis meet between Nebraska and Kansas Aggies which was to have been played here Wednesday was canceled because of the inclemency of the weather. The Aggie net artists called the Husker athletic authorities early Wednesday morning to inquire about weather conditions. Because the courts were wet and in no condition to be used, the meet was postponed. The meet will probably not be played until next year on account of the closing of the school year.

MORE RAIN HALTS CUB-LINKS GAME

Hastings Club Makes Trip Here Overland in Twelve Hours—Lincoln Will Play Crete at Crete Monday.

By John Bentley

More rain Thursday forced another halt in the Hastings-Lincoln series. A doubleheader was scheduled for Thursday afternoon but at 1 p. m. the field was still wet and muddy and the double bill was put over another day. The first game Friday will be called at 2 p. m. provided some wind and sun dries the field sufficiently.

The Hastings club had a weird trip down from their home town. They left at 3 p. m. Wednesday and got here at 3 a. m. Thursday. Twelve hours for 105 miles is not going to make Jimmy Murphy turn green with envy but, according to the Hastings players, they were lucky to get here at all, what with cars breaking down and slipping into the ditch with sickening regularity.

Manager Buck Beltzer announced that an exhibition game would be played with the Crete club at Crete, Monday afternoon, which is an off day. The Links finish the second home series Sunday. Fairbury is here for a game Saturday and a double-header Sunday. Tuesday the Links hit the road again, opening at Beatrice and closing at Fairbury, returning home for a series with Norfolk, Tuesday, June 5.

Track Team Off For Valley Meet

The Nebraska track, golf and tennis teams left at noon Thursday for Ames, Ia., where they will compete in the Missouri Valley conference meets Friday and Saturday. Herb Gish, assistant in the athletic director's office, learned by long-distance telephone conversation with Ames that rain which has drenched Nebraska for the past several days has passed Ames, and that everything is in fine shape for the meet.

Coach Schulte took twenty-seven track men with him. The tennis team was composed of R. C. Russell, Minor Skallberg, W. S. Petticord and M. R. Joy. The golf team was made up of Don Newton, Phil Aitken, Carl Henkleman and Jack Whitten.

DO YOU KNOW?

Why wasn't Harry Wills included in the New York heavyweight carnival? F. D. L.

Willis was offered a place on the card against George Godfrey, a big colored heavyweight who had been knocked out previously by Jack Renault, but Wills refused. He missed a good chance to make a good showing by comparison with Willard and Firpo—if he could.

How many utility infielders and outfielders have the New York Yanks? H. H. N.

The Yanks have only one reliable utility infielder, Mike McNally, and three outfield reserves, Smith, Hendricks and Haines.

Are there any leading left-handed players among the men tennis stars? F. D.

Howard Voshell is the only leading left-handed player in this country.

The tribute was paid upon the first visit of the Blues to this city this year.

HOW FIRPO AND WILLARD WILL STACK-UP

Tho Luis Angel Firpo, the wild man from the Argentine, is much smaller than the "come-back" Jess Willard, the early betting favors him to win in his coming fight with the Kansas man, who so decisively whipped Floyd Johnson. The men have been matched to fight, probably in the Yankee stadium in New York city, some time before July 7. Tex Rickard will promote the bout, and the winner is to meet Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight championship, probably on Labor day.

KNOWS HOW TO PLAY BALL BUT SHORT ON ENGLISH

Baseball owners and managers do not always find their hardest tasks in teaching rookie ball players how to play ball. The Albany club recently got Quintana, a Cuban shortstop from the New York Yanks, and he had to be sent to business school to learn how to speak the language. It was too tough a job to run an interpreter to second base to tell him to steal.

Tons of fish have been smothered in Glenmore Lake, Orange County, N. Y., by the ice, which covers the lake from shore to shore. The ice was more than two feet thick and on this was a foot or more of snow. When a hole was cut thru the ice thousands of dead fish came to the surface and were carried over the dam. Hundreds of live fish in search of air filled the holes which were cut.—Scientific American.

CHANGE IN OWNERS CONSIDERED CERTAIN

Commissioner Landis' Mission in Gotham Said to Verify Big Switch—McGraw to Continue as Manager.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Change in the ownership of the Giants, many times reported and denied during the last winter, is considered almost a certainty now in baseball circles here.

Charles A. Stoneham is expected to retire as the president and chief stockholder in the club within a very short time, tho John McGraw no doubt will retain his interest and continue in active management of the team.

Judge Landis Under Cover.

Commissioner Landis has been in town several days and he has been so under cover that his business is obviously very important.

Landis, it was learned from a responsible authority, is trying to interest Col. T. L. Huston in buying Stoneham's interest in the Giants. Huston has just disposed of his holdings in the New York Yankees.

The colonel at one itme was a great Giant fan, and before he secured a half interest in the New York American league club, he used to travel around the circuit with the Giants. The terms under which he disposed of his Yankee stock will not prevent him from buying into the Giants or the Brooklyn Robins if he should want to.

Giants Drawing Poorly.

The Giants have been drawing poorly this season at the Polo grounds. Considering that McGraw has one of the greatest teams in the game, and that New York always wants a winner, the cool feeling toward the world's champions is hard to explain.

The Minnesota statute, which makes a railroad liable for action in that state if it maintains an agency there, was found obnoxious to the federal constitution and was declared void by the supreme court.

"Your fame and that of the museum is made," shouted the supervisor of ornithology. "And where in South America did you find this marvelous toothed bird that laughs and weeps?"

"What do you mean, bird and South America?" Zimmer asked. "The specimen I'm talking about I found in a crib in Lawrence, Neb., and I'm its proud father. I'll tell the world. Boy, my dear fellow, not bird. And not a candidate ... either—"

"We will proceed," said the supervisor, coughing and adjusting his glasses, "to a discussion of the discoveries made by Mr. H... yourself and the remainder of your associates in regard to new specimens of the ornithological fauna in the jungles of Peru. As I was saying, you found—?"

With a sigh, Mr. Zimmer returned to his vest pocket a snapshot that he had pulled enthusiastically forth and resignedly opened his notebook.

SUED FOR DEATH OF BABY

Sokol Society and City of Crete Charged With Negligence Leading to Electrocution.

Fred H. Rethmeier, administrator of the estate of John E. Rethmeier, jr., brought suit Wednesday in federal district court to recover $10,000 from the city of Crete, the Telocvina Jidnota Sokol and Edward G. Campbell. The defendants are charged with negligence leading to the death of John by electrocution.

On January 26, 1922, the petition sets forth, John E. Rethmeier, jr., a child of eighteen months, was attracted by bright metal objects in the switchbox installed in the Sokol opera house and touched them, being instantly killed. It is charged that the switchbox was improperly installed, not conforming with the underwriters' rules set as a requirement by a Crete ordinance adopted in 1919, and that the city and the Sokol society and Mr. Campbell as city electrician who installed the opera house fixtures and wiring were all responsible for the baby's death.

The petition alleges that the switchbox was only twenty-eight inches from the floor, instead of the six feet prescribed by the rules, that it was so installed that the frame and dimmers became heavily charged, that it was not properly enclosed, supervised or guarded, and that the wiring and fixtures were not properly insulated.

DAY OF EXODUS UNCERTAIN

GOVERNOR ALLEGED TO HAVE SET JUNE 1 AS DATE.

No One Admits It—Governor Says He Is Moving Slowly to Avoid Injuring Public Service.

Reports that the gubernatorial axe will fall June 1 upon the heads of department's still remaining over from the former administration have been in circulation for some time. Governor Bryan has failed thus far to make known the day of exodus. On the contrary he has said he is proceeding cautiously so that the service to the public shall not suffer. The latest rumor had it that the governor had asked Secretary Hart of the department of trade and commerce, Secretary Antles of the department of public welfare, Dr. I. H. Dillon, chief of the bureau of health and Secretary Kennedy of the department of labor to be ready to leave their offices by June 1.

"Let the governor say what he has to say about that," replied Mr. Antles when asked concerning this report.

"No," said Mr. Kennedy, "the governor has not told me to get out by June 1 or any other day. I have not seen him for some time."

"The governor has not told me anything," said Dr. Dillon, "and I have not seen him for some time."

Mr. Hart left Lincoln Tuesday evening and was not in his office Wednesday.

My home was in a small town and as my parents were not rich I had every com... Then came a man into my ... who was dashing and good looking and I fell for him as many another trusting girl has done. He completely won me over, and with his wonderful words he beguiled me into his power whence he used me to his own affair age under the pretense of a love which was false. That was before I had learned of men such as he. My parents approved of him because he appeared so fine and manly. I hardly knew what I was doing and it all came about so quickly that I was quite swept away.

Of course you know the result, a village scandal and my leaving town. As soon as he accomplished his desires he left me, and when I went to his lovely home in the city he told me that he must not be seen with such a woman as I. He also informed me that he had nothing to do with women of my kind, and said for me to go.

I was an outcast, he and his set had branded me, my home was barred and no place to go. Now I have a job and a fairly good income but those few reckless months of love have asked their price, and it is by no means an easily paid one.

I have now learned that the man who so betrayed my honor is now married to women who adores him and their two children. Don't you see now why I say that a man always expects the women he marries to be pure yet he is guilty of immoral acts. This man would not marry me because he said I was not pure, so he choose the other women.

I don't say all men are like this but my experience has showed me that some are. If men arent the cause of a girls downfall in such matters then who is, you know it takes two to make a quarrel, likewise two in this sense and one is to blame, and it's not always the girl either.

Eve did bite the apple first, but that proves what a coward man is. Adam was afraid to taste the apple lest he die so he wishes Eve to do so, then when he saw the effects on her he would try it, thereby Eve was made an experiment for convenience of man.

You say that women are ignorant creatures, well then why didn't Adam warn Eve, was it her fault when she knew no better and he did. Women is called the weaker sex because she is supposed to bend to man's will. If women are senseless being how can they love men, as you say. When I was it was not with warnings of my eleders in my ears. Always—An Experienced One.

A. If he was that sort of man you are happier without him, are you not? It is splendid that you have remade your life. I cannot but think that sometime you will find happiness to compensate you for what you have suffered.

Dear Mary Gordon: I am very much in love with a man thirteen years my senior, and he has often said that he loved me, and I know that he did. However, we are not engaged, because my parents do not approve of our friendship. Here is what is worrying me. The other day he broke an engagement with me and gave no explanation for it. He has been in the habit of phoning me every day, but now I have not heard from him for two days. I am terribly worried, for he means everything to me.

Do you think he is getting tired of me and doesn't have the courage to tell me so? Should I have asked him for an explanation? I don't like to make him think that I am watching his every move, or that I am jealous. I am so afraid he has decided that he does not love me after all. What do you think?—Just Blue.

A. Why do your parents disapprove of your friendship with this young man? Have an affectionate talk with them and discover the reason. If you cannot persuade them to think as you do, then forget him. Invite him to your home and ask him to tell you frankly the cause of his sudden silence, if your parents consent.

Dear Mary Gordon: I am eighteen years of age. I have been going with a girl one year my senior and I have grown to care a great deal for her.

One of my friends said he bet he ... [illegible] ... we had been ... [illegible] ... about me and ... When I asked her if she ... [illegible] ... I heard her ... I broke our friendship but now I see that it ... a frame-up as she said ... I am sorry. I would like to go ... her and renew our old friendship ... an apology due her ... I ask her why she denied ... or should I not?

A ... of my friends even her sister tell me I am foolish if I go back to her. I don't know what to do. Should I go back to her and pay no attention to them or should I leave her alone?—Undecided Jack.

A. At your age you should have many girl friends. Do not confine yourself to one.

Since the girl was not engaged to you it is her privilege to make as many appointments with as many friends as she chooses. Since there are two conflicting stories I cannot tell you whether to renew the friendship with her or not. I do not know her integrity or that of the young man who carried the tale to you. You should know your friends and their worth.

Dear Mary Gordon: I am a girl of 17 and I love a young man of 25 years. When I am with him he acts as tho he loved me, but he never has told me that he does. If we have another girl with us or are where there are other girls, he doesn't act as tho he cared for me very much.

He has a steady girl but she is away at school. When she is at home he goes to see her every Sunday night but if there is a dance thru the week he never takes her but takes other girls.

Now I would like to win his love but it seems the harder I try to accommodate him the less attention he pays me. I would just do anything in the world for him almost.

The only reason that I have to think he loves me is because he talks about me to other girls. He told one girl I was sure a good kid and that one could sure have a good time with me.

Now it seems I have very little control over myself. I let him kiss me. He doesn't get angry if I won't let him but he keeps asking me why I won't let him. Then I lose control of myself again and he does as he pleases. Oh, Mary Gordon can't you please tell me a way to gain control of myself. Some nights after I come home and get in a bed because I have let him kiss me and I feel ashamed.

Please tell me also how I can gain his love.—Wandering.

A. You cannot hope to win the love of a man if you do not command his respect and esteem. That thought alone should make you hold your dignity in the presence of this man as well as all others.

Read, train your mind, and make yourself an interesting person. You are capable of doing so, I know. Acquire charm and then you will soon find yourself with a host of friends who will find a real enjoyment in your company. Remember these friends will give you as much respect as you demand of them. Some day you will win the love of a fine man.

And self-control is merely a condition of the mind. Surely you are its master.

BOYS ENTERTAIN MOTHERS

DINNER FOR FIFTY AT HI-Y CLUB FOLLOWED BY PROGRAM.

Boys of the Lincoln Hi-Y Club Had Their Mothers as Guests Wednesday Evening.

Fifty plates were laid in the cozy club house, the tables centering around the fireplace, and dinner was served at 6:15.

Richard Smith, president of the club,, presided and W. A. Luke offered grace. Music was furnished by George Britton's boys orchestra. Sam Bignell gave a reading, followed by a symposium of the work of the Hi-Y club. Secretary Vessey spoke on "The Hi-Y a National Movement." He told how the movement had started in a little town in Kansas a few years ago and was now a world-wide movement with many thousands of members. He stated the purpose of the club as "To create, maintain and extend thruout the school, high ideals of Christian character," and the motto as "Clean Sport, Clean Speech and Clean Living." Richard Smith spoke of the work of the past year, stating that the Lincoln Hi-Y club boasts of the only club house in the country. He told of many interesting features of the Hi-Y work, and then called on Harold Schermerhorn, who reviewed the Bible discussions during the past year, on "Life Problems of High School Boys."

Charles Speedie spoke on the "Find Yourself Campaign." He reported that during the past month sixty boys have filled out analysis blanks and interviews are now being arranged by the secretary with business men, giving these boys an opportunity to learn more about the vocation they contemplate entering. H. P. Shepherd was then called upon and spoke of the relation of the Hi-Y club to school work. He praised the club very highly for its work this past year. Lee Rankin rendered a flute solo.

Mrs. E. G. Bignell read a poem on "A Mother's Mission." Mrs. A. C. Schwenker gave a response for the mothers in which she expressed high appreciation of the influence of the Hi-Y club. O. J. Fee, chairman of the advisory committee, was introduced and assured the boys it was a pleasure to be connected with a group of boys who were doing big things. The dinner was served by Mrs. H. L. Noll, club house mother, assisted by her daughters. The program closed with the singing of "Blessed Be the Tie that Binds."

CULT PROBE TO ADJOURN

State Wants to Perfect New and Sensational Evidence Against House of David.

ST JOSEPH, Mich., May 24—Efforts to have the House of David declared bankrupt by Berrien county circuit court failed today when Judge Charles E. White refused to hear a petition asking that receivers be appointed.

Jerome Robbins, Chicago attorney, representing five former members of the cult, and "more than 200 seceding members," presented the petition.

Judge White ruled that under the Michigan law it is necessary to institute suit and hold a hearing on a bankruptcy petition, and cut Attorney Robbins off sharply when the lawyer attempted to argue the point.

ST JOSEPH, Mich., May 24.—The Michigan investigation of immorality charges against House of David members will probably adjourn for two weeks tomorrow to allow the state to perfect "new and sensational evidence," Judge Harry Dingeman, conducting the 'one man' grand jury, intimated today.

H. T. Dewhirst, the colony's attorney, subpoenaed to explain alleged "fake" affidavits given probers by cult members, is expected to testify today.

The investigators, led by Judge Dingeman, were taken on an extensive tour of the colony, with exception of Shiloh, "King" Benjamin Purnell's home, by cult members yesterday. Pulski Drake, said to be dying, was questioned in an effort by probers to learn the correct age of his daughter, Countiss, "group wedding" bride. Drake was unable to give the information.

DID SHE RESIST OFFICERS?

Case of Mrs. Stanley of Hastings, Involving Small Fine, Submitted to Supreme Court.

Assistant Attorney General Lee Basye appeared in the supreme court Thursday afternoon in defense of a $10 fine and costs imposed by the district court upon Mrs. Bess Stanley of Hastings for resisting an officer. The jury in the case found her guilty as charged and recommended leniency on the ground that it believed the police officers of Hastings had been hasty. The state takes the position that the small fine imposed was certainly carrying out the wish of the jury.

The local police officers searched Mrs. Stanley's house at the noon hour when she and others were partaking of dinner on Easter Sunday. She is alleged to have resisted the officers when they began a search for liquors. She rushed to a room, grasped a jug and broke it upon the floor. The officers sought to save some of the liquor by soaking napkins in it. Mrs. Stanley admitted slapping the chief of police in the face as hard as she could and was charged with having scratched or bit his hand.

Assistant Attorney General Lloyd Dort argued the Meester and Nash cases for the state. Illegal possession of stills are involved in these appeals.

CLAIMS HUSBAND CUSSED HER.

Mrs. Ethel A. Hornaday filed suit for divorce in district court Thursday morning, alleging extreme cruetly and failure on the part of the defendant to provide for her properly. It is alleged in the petition that Arville I. Hornaday, the husband, called his wife a two faced blankety blank, and a dash dashed old fool. It is also charged in the petition that Mr. Hornaday is able to earn $1,500 a year, but that he is lazy and refuses to work when he should, and that the wife has been compelled to earn money for her own clothing. There are four children, whom the mother asks to be allowed to keep. She also asks alimony and an allowance for their support. Mr. and Mrs. Hornaday were married in Oberlin, Kas., June 3, 1903, and have been residents of Lancaster county for more than twenty years.

TURCO-GREEK BREAK NEAR

HOURLY EXPECTED AT LAUSANNE PEACE CONFERENCE.

Athens Government Said to Have Rejected Recent Compromise Which Venizelos Accepted and Situation Is Tense.

LONDON, May 24.—A break between Greece and Turkey is expected hourly at Lausanne where the near east peace conference trembles on the brink of the precipice.

Optimistic advices from Lausanne say there is hope that a compromise is imminent, but pessimistic dispatches state the Greek government has rejected the recent compromise which M. Venizelos, Greek representative, had accepted, and that the situation is more tense than before.

The Greeks claim that an entire Turkish division had been crossed into Thrace in the last few days, ready for hostilities. These same reports say that the Moslems are in bad condition, while the 200,000 Greek soldiers who face them are well equipped and have high morale.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE IS FORTY

Autoists Barred as Wear and Tear of Four Decades Incapacitates It for Service.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Brooklyn bridge today celebrated his fortieth birthday.

He received many visitors but no presents. Autoists were barred as the wear and tear of four decades of strenuous life had made old Mr. Bridge too feeble to stand the strain.

In spite of the tremors of age, Mr. Bridge recollected clearly the thrill he felt when Steve Brodie leaped from his rail into fame—and the East river. The other day an intoxicated man fell from about the same spot and was picked up undamaged, save for the loss of one trouser leg—but the name of Steve lives on regardless.

Mr. Bridge has seen New York grow from a prosaic place of about a million souls, when there were goats up in Harlem, to its present majestic proportions. He remembers the time when his Gothic stone towers overlooked any skyscraper the town boasted. He has seen millions of immigrants, now respected citizens, landing at Ellis island with bundles on their heads. He saw the ships sail away to the Spanish war and saw away up the East river, the smoke from the burning horror of the General Slocum.

Flags fluttered today, in honor of the anniversary but mostly the town gave never a thought to the aged span now eclipsed by mightier sons up the river.

CHIROPRACTIC SUIT STOPS

Appeal of State Association for Injunction Dismissed in Supreme Court of Nebraska.

The attorney general's office has just received notice that the suit of the Nebraska Chiropractic association to enjoin the department of public welfare from licensing C. A. Pierce of Hastings was dismissed on appeal in the supremecourt May 1. It is alleged the change by the legislature in the law defining the eligibility of licensees under the chiropractic law caused the state association to abandon its appeal. The district court of Lancaster county held that the state department was at liberty to examine and license the applicant because the old law regulating qualifications for examination are directory and not mandatory. The state department had decided to give the applicant credit for one year's attendance at a medical college.

GUBERNATORIAL AX READY TO DESCEND

Mrs. Hornberger Is the Latest Appointee Alleged to Have Been Requested to Quit Work June 1.

Governor Bryan, after making diligent inquiry Thursday said he had heard of no more resignations from employes in code departments. Whether the day set for a general exodus of republicans at the head of code departments is June 1 or some other day has not been made known.

"I do not remember having asked for resignations June 1," he said.

Mrs. Hornberger, head of the division of child welfare, department of public welfare had nothing to say. She is alleged to have told friends she had been asked to resign June 1. Secretary Antles of that department, declines to say whether he has been asked to resign on that date. His office is in such condition that he can leave any time the word is given.

Secretary Frank A. Kennedy, at 10:46 a. m. Thursday, said he had not been asked to leave his office June 1. However, he would not be surprised to receive such notice any moment.

Secretary Hart of the department of trade and commerce is out of town on business.

Dr. E. Arthur Carr has recently been a frequent visitor to the laboratory of the state bureau of health. Dr. I. H. Dillon is holding over as chief of this bureau.

Her bond was fixed at $500, which she is arranging to put up. A complaint filed by Peter Wickstrum charges that on March 24 the defendant defrauded the Lincoln Auto Exchange by selling the company an auto which she is alleged to have represented as clear of encumbrance. The complaint charges that the license on the machine was forged and that the auto was mortgaged.

UP FROM THE DEATH CELL

The Story of a Man Who Made Good

BY JOHN W KANE

EX-CONVICT NO. 1666.

(Copyright, 1923, in the United States, Canada, Great Britian and South America, by the North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.)

[illegible] THIRTY-ONE.

[illegible] to believe that a begin[illegible] which was in truth the [illegible] might have worked [illegible] way upon some persons, [illegible] most persons who lived [illegible] with me in the prison.

[illegible] I was simply trembling [illegible] and appreciation inward-[illegible] a calm exterior, and even [illegible] I was not forgetful of how [illegible] in a beginning might [illegible] the success of a pros-[illegible] who found the body of ore, but [illegible] of its proving to be a vein, it [illegible] be a mere pocket. Moreover, [illegible] had been trying in thought to train [illegible] that too common a defect of [illegible] the eyes to be dazzled by [illegible].

I [illegible] to keep in a frame of [illegible] which at once held gratitude and [illegible] determination, yet would [illegible] me to run entirely away [illegible].

[illegible] here mention must be made [illegible] particular matter. The whole of [illegible] fifty dollar story was [illegible] upon material furnished me by [illegible] of the officers at the prison who [illegible] formerly been an inspector for a [illegible] railway. When my little success began to make a bit of talk around and thru the institution, he was not ready with any great demonstration of joy, yet I knew that he was glad.

He casually told me something con-[illegible] his past work and I quickly [illegible] it a story; and while he would never take unto himself any of the [illegible] for whatever success I might have had and am still having, as a [illegible] of fact I owe a great deal to [illegible] that particular way. And at [illegible] latter date I am glad to count him one of those who formerly stood as guard and counselor to me, among my real and best friends.

I Try Verse.

The stimulating effect of those three acceptances caused me to break into verse for one little four-stanza production.

That went down on my record as a mistake—even tho I felt, and yet feel, that the lines contained a measure of truth. A crime wave, happening to start at this juncture, gave ammunition to my critics outside.

In order that the reader may understand fully how that jingle of a composition worked against me, I shall [illegible] write it again:

[illegible] years ago and we don't know when,
[illegible] know we who first said it,
[illegible] someone told the sons of men—
[illegible] he wrote with a goose-quill pen—
(A truth [illegible] now, just the same as then)
You can't keep a good man down.

We heard [illegible] words in our childish play
[illegible] sound and meaning;
And [illegible] in our childlike way,
[illegible] some strong man who refused to stay
Where he'd been thrown—but who rose to say
"You can't keep a good man down."

And now, with all of our child thoughts fled
[illegible] life's hard tasks before us,
We wonder oft 'twixt hope and dread—
And, sometimes, mirthfully instead—
What thought men, when it first was said
"You can't keep a good man down."

[illegible] why think back to the long ago?
Our work is here close by,
And tho we may be sad or gay—
Or, perhaps, down and out today—
[illegible] we'll but rise; then of us they'll say,
You can't keep a good man down.

This was written for the editor of a magazine in the northwest, devoted to the interests of the under dog.

It Proves a Boomerang.

He had several times asked me to write something for him, but because of the fact that I was trying so hard to land something with a publication that paid for contributions I failed to do anything for him gratis. But getting that one hundred and ninety dollars to my credit caused me to feel so good that I recalled his expressed desire, and straightway I wrote him.

My verses and an editorial note of explanation brought local newspaper criticism. The prison administration was attacked, and the inmates too.

The other prisoners believed the versification was a boast on my part.

Poor old cynical Brown was, so far as I know, the only other inmate who took anything like a philosophic view of the whole situation.

"Well," said he, when I met him on a lower stairway one afternoon, "you're causing a lot of murmuring among the multitude again."

"Yes, it seems that I am, Brownie," I replied. "What ought I to do about it?"

"Do nothing. Just let the heathen rage. Keep on doing good work."

That was the best suggestion I had heard, and I knew that I was going to act upon it.

As my study of law and other works was often disturbed and delayed because of general conditions and an occasional happening like a diningroom riot, so was my writing interfered with in as many if not more ways.

The crime wave of 1912-13 was also productive of various convictions, among which were five for murder in the first degree, and they called for the death penalty.

Up to that time in that prison no special place had been built separate from the regular cellhouses in which to keep condemned murderers, and the location of murderers' row had been changed from where I had been confined eight years before to one of the tiers in that new cellhouse where I was then first assistant to the custodian.

I Learn Not to Look.

Beginning with May, 1912, those five men doomed to die were brought up from the county jails one by one and confined on that dismal and isolated tier.

Unlike the practice that obtained when Dutch Charley and I were under the death sentence, whereby we were allowed to take exercise out on the ground of an inner court, those men would be released from their cells—by means of a lever-bar worked from the office—and would walk up and down that corridor for an hour each day. I was the only time-sentence prisoner with whom they were permitted to talk—because I was the only one they ever saw there—and the talk was supposed to be confined to matters pertaining to their business with that office, such as getting supplies. But that rule was not enforced very strictly, and the result was that I became rather well acquainted with all five

One by one, as their respective days came round, they were led out to die. Four of them had chosen to be shot, and one—with an expressed desire to put the authorities to as much trouble as possible—had chosen to be hanged, which necessitated the building of a scaffold.

From all this I learned one thing: for my peace of mind it were better that I did not get acquainted with men confined there prior to their execution. For days after each execution I would be so depressed that it was a trying task to do even the institutional work. There was not a man of the five that did not have many likable traits. I believed, and still believe, that they were worth saving.

To hear from time to time the volley of rifles that told of the speeding of a human soul—situations of that kind stood truly upon the side of detriment to any creative work. There was, too, other conditions that interfered greatly with my progress.

Inasmuch as I was, in a way, a kind of go-between in connection with the office on the one side and the prisoners on the other, I was oftentimes between the devil and the deep blue sea. While a great many of the prisoners did not like me because of my inclination not to follow the beaten trails of convict life, they liked the guards and officials a great deal less. Because of that they would approach my desk and break my train of thought many times during the day when, by taking four steps in another direction, they might have told their troubles to the officer on duty.

Then there was on practice in that prison which was at once productive of a standing nuisance and great danger. It was the practice of permitting so called harmless insane prisoners to run at large with other prisoners This came near ending me

ACCUSES CULT "KING"

"KING" BENJAMIN PURNELL

MRS. HELEN BAUSHKE COUCH.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—Authorities here seek "King" Benjamin Purnell, head of the House of David, a religious cult, which has figured in sensational charges. "King" Benjamin is accused by Mrs. Helen Baushke Couch of having taken liberties with her while she was a member of the cult. Testimony given at the inquiry was to the effect that girls of twelve and fifteen years were allowed liberties by Purnell on his persuasions that it would cleanse their souls and that they were not doing wrong.

GOMPERS TRAVELS MUCH.

WASHINGTON, May 24.- Samuel Gompers, head of the A. F. of L., does more traveling than a railway conductor. Last year he traveled 25,000 miles on 90 trips, engaged in 604 conferences in all parts of the country, gave 146 newspaper interviews, delivered 66 public addresses, of which thirteen were before international union conventions, wrote 15,263 individual letters and issued 125,591 circular letters in addition he argued before four congressional committees and hearings in four state legislatures. All the while he was transacting the routine business of his office and directing the work of his assistants.

Two more alleged klansmen were arrested at Monroe, La.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, May 24.—Grain prices advanced on the Chicago board of trade today. Wheat trading thruout the day was nervous and irregular, firming up after an early dip on a good class of local buying. Crop news continued mixed, the southwest reporting clearing weather after two days of heavy rains.

Corn experienced frequent rallies. Reports of seed rotting in the ground in Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and parts of the Ohio valley increased. Cash demand appeared better, with values on a firmer footing.

Oats followed other grains. There was a conspicuous lack of speculative support.

After a mid-day rally, provisions weakened with the withdrawal of buying support and weaker cables.

CHICAGO, May 24.—Grain prices opened fractionally lower on the Chicago board of trade today.

Sharply lower cables and favorable crop news caused considerable selling in wheat. Liverpool was weak, due to increased Argentine offerings and a stagnant demand.

Corn weakened with wheat. The continued mild weather has resulted in increased seeding.

Oats were dull and lacked features. Receipts, 50 cars.

Provisions were dull and unchanged.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, May 24.—Underlying conditions are strong, but buying power is limited. Under these conditions trading markets are likely. Some of the strongest men look for higher prices ultimately.

There are large local interests on both sides of the corn market. One is radically bearish and the other equally bullish. The latter set believe corn will sell at $1 before another crop is secured. Country stocks are light and terminal stocks are decreasing.

A friendly feeling exists toward oats in some quarters because of the low price.

Lack of speculative interest in rye is most pronounced.

Export Demand.

Export sales yesterday were estimated at 100,000 to 200,000 bushels wheat and 200,000 bushels corn.—Lamson.

Grain Market Opinions.

Bartlett-Frazier & Co.: We favor purchases on further declines.

Stein-Alstrin: The situation favors purchases of wheat on declines and sales of corn on the bulges. Until speculative interest broadens however, it will be difficult to maintain advances.

Hulburd-Warren & Chandler: We would await weak spots before making purchases.

Thomson-McKinnon: A fresh motive seems needed to prevent a setback in values.

Clement-Curtis & Co.: We look for a trading market but corn needs a good cash demand to sustain this level.

Logan & Bryan: We would buy conservatively on setbacks for moderate turns.

Lamson Grain Co.: The cash demand remains extremely poor. Winter carryover of wheat will probably be sufficient to offset any possible shortage.—Lamson.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, May 24.—While wheat bulls are disappointed after the close they were cheerful as compared to the bulls in corn. Both classes expected help from the outside and it is not forthcoming.

According to one prominent grain man, with harvest time approaching and speculators not in the market to take care of the hedging wheat may suffer a sharp break when such pressure develops. "Government officers who have promised farmers better prices for grain and have undertaken to supervise speculation," he said, "had better get busy soon to stimulate speculative buying power."—Lamson.

Foreign Cables.

LIVERPOOL, May 24.—Wheat opened today ½@¾d lower; wheat at 2:30 p. m. ¾@1d lower; wheat at 3:30 p. m. July ¾d lower, October 1d lower; wheat closed today, July ⅞d lower, October ⅞d lower.

Business Conditions Good.

CHICAGO, May 24.—J. J. Mitchell, president of the Illinois Merchants' Trust Co., declared yesterday on his return from Washington that business conditions thruout the country are very satisfactory. Most of the bankers hold the belief that we are coming back to a 5 per cent money rate as funds are plentiful. Mr. Mitchell is optimistic regarding the future of the stock market.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Not only were the gains of the previous sessions maintained in today's market, but aggressiveness was developed on the side of the advance for the first time in recent weeks. Professional operators who had expected to retire their short contracts in leisurely fashion had to scramble for cover as the rally gained momentum. Some striking gains were scored by industrial leaders like American Can, Steel, Studebaker, Baldwin, American Woolen and California Petroleum, while strength was exhibited practically thruout the rail list, including many low priced issues.

It was a curious coincidence that the sudden development of group buoyancy among the carriers took place on the eve of the so-called "progressive bloc" conference in Chicago at which the LaFollette group in congress will discuss means of [illegible] down property valuations of the roads made by the interstate commerce commission for ratemaking purposes.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Announcement that the Morgan interests had sufficient confidence in the financial situation to proceed with the offering of $25,000,000 Austrian reconstruction loan, stimulated buying thruout the list and active issues showed fair gains over the previous close on the initial transactions. Steel advanced ⅛ to 96. Studebaker ⅝ to 108¾, and California Petroleum ⅝ to 103¾. Rails were strengthened by the loadings aggregating 974,521 cars in the week ended May 12, the highest weekly total since November 22, 1922, and a new record for this season of the year.

Opening prices: Dupont 124½, up ¾; American Can 93½; Sinclair 29¼, off ⅛; Bethlehem Steel 52¾, off ⅛; Baldwin 125¾, off ½; Consolidated Gas 62, up ⅛; Union Pacific 135¼, up 1; New York Central 94¾, up ⅝; California Petroleum 103¾, up ⅝; Studebaker 105¾, up ⅝; U. S. Steel 96, up ½; Corn Products 121, off ⅝; General Motors 14⅝.

Continued improvement in a wide variety of issues in the noon dealings reflected optimism resulting from the proposed new Austrian loan. Some big professional speculators who had planned to complete covering operations on further breaks this week were reported to be retiring their short contracts at the market and new highs on the recovery were reached in many sections of the list before 1 o'clock.

A Gear Shifting Hint.

After paying many repair bills, caused by members of my family shoving the shift lever into reverse while trying to reach intermediate, I finally solved the problem by cutting a piece of one-inch board and fastening it to the front board with a T-hinge. When this board is down it will prevent the shift lever from being thrown into reverse.

The board should be placed so that it will not interfere with the lever being thrown into intermediate. The block should be cut so that it will lean down a little at the back and so that the lever cannot knock it upwards. When the driver wishes to reverse, he can easily and quickly lift the board with his foot, shoving it down again before going ahead.

The above plan will work on the majority of cars where the shift into reverse is forward. Some cars are provided with a latch which prevents shifting into reverse without releasing the lock, but for the many cars that have not this provision, this arrangement may save a lot of trouble.

Watch for These Boys.

If some so-called "livestock improvement association" salesman comes along and wants to get you to sign up for a so-called $150 brood sow on the plea that he will buy back the pigs at $75 apiece, you might better go home and consult your wife about it. She probably will tell you to investigate the matter. And after you look into the thing thoroly you may decide against it. A number of these concerns are working in different parts of the country, and they do not always keep their promises. The "contract" is hedged about with conditions, and it is usually not a part of the note you sign. Dr. McCampbell of Kansas agricultural college has investigated several of the associations in Kansas and warns the farmers of that state against them. He points out that at the present time one can get started in the pure-bred livestock business with splendid animals at conservative prices, if one will deal with the well-established, reliable breeders of the country.—Farm Life.

Little Known Race of Indians.

The Nootkas of Vancouver island are village dwellers. Their old-time rectangular houses of cedar planks formerly stood close to the water's edge in the majestic fiords that indent the impenetrable mountains and forests of the interior. Now their small modernized settlements are strung north and south in bead-like fashion all along the west coast of their island home. They have occupied the same coves from time immemorial.

Far away to the east, across the mountains, lived the elusive hunters of the endless plains, the Crees, the Stonies and the Blackfeet, whose nomadic existence admitted of no fixed abode and whose conical skin tipis incessantly shifted from place to place for the requirements of peace and war. Even at the present day, after the government has barb-wired them on reserves, their Indian agencies and missions stand in lonely isolation, like symbols of the new restrictions which have not yet won full recognition in the land.

Whereas the Nootkas depended on the deep sea for subsistence—their foods being codfish, salmon, whale, candle-fish oil and seal blubber—the restless rovers of the prairies coveted nothing but buffalo meat, which, once their ravenous appetites were satisfied they dried in the sun or prepared into pemmican for preservation. If the former cared nothing for the flesh of land animals, the latter—the Blackfeet in particular—loathed all fish-eaters, for fish in their estimation was as "unclean" as snakes are to most white people.

Their respective modes of traveling and hunting were as far apart as the nature of their foods. The coast fishermen could not betake themselves to any distance without their one-piece canoes hollowed out from the trunks of the giant cedars; they fished with nets of wild hemp and hooks made of bone and hardwood. They gathered in canoe parties for hunting the whale, their weapons being detachable harpoon heads fastened to large seal stomach floats and propelled by long poles. The whale-hunting songs and magic rituals of their chief were, in their belief, no less essential for the success of their venturesome enterprises than the primitive harpoons they employed.—Arts and Decoration.

The Blue Rug.

Mrs. Lane recently spent several hundred dollars, that she's been saving for ten years, in refurnishing the living room. She had been reading all the articles that she could find on interior decorating and furniture. She told me all the principles the day she asked me to go to town with her to help her shop. The floor covering, for one thing, should be dark and neutral-toned.

"Something in a dull brown or soft dark gray with a uniform modern pattern. Nothing striking should ever be placed on the floor of a charming room," she went on, like a person reciting. "It goes against man's finer instinct to put his foot on a pink rose or a big brown dog patterned in the rug."

When we came to the furniture store the first thing Mrs. Lane saw was a rug—a rich, bright blue with a large medallion of mauve, rose, brown, green, yellow and purple in the center and an ornate border carrying out the same design. She looked at it longingly, then turned resolutely back to look at the modest browns and dark grays. But the blue rug had spoiled them for her. At last she flung up her hands in a gesture of despair and bought the rug she liked.

I was over yesterday to see how the place looks and the living room is charming with that deep bright rug, reed furniture, blue hangings and blue pillows around. The sun shines in this room from noon till dark and it is beautiful.

"Isn't that rug lovely," she crooned. "I am just crazy about it. I come and look at it every ten minutes. I think a person is wise to buy what she likes best, don't you?"

"Every time," I agreed with her.—Farm Life.

What is Eltelic?

You have wondered about the meaning of the name "Eltelic" perhaps. It is a "made-up" word—the initials of "Lincoln Trust Life Insurance Club"—l-t-l-i-c—and two e's to smooth it up.

But the word doesn't mean much until you learn the service which is performed by our Eltelic Department. Suppose you have three Life Insurance policies about as follows:

Due March 10 on $5,000 policy $114.25
Due August 15 on $2,000 policy 68.18
Due December 20 on $3,000 policy 147.84
Total premiums $330.27

The policy premium coming due in December hits you rather hard. It is the holiday season when we all feel poorer than usual—because we want to make many presents. And yet it is no harder to meet than any of the others if you could cut it up into twelve payments.

That is where Eltelic helps you. By paying us $27.53 each month, under our Eltelic contract, we would pay all three of the premiums when they fall due. And once a year we would give you credit for 5 per cent interest on the daily balances in your account—probably about $8.00 for the year.

In the year 1921, Life Insurance agents wrote 102 million dollars of policies in Nebraska. And during the year about 3½ millions of death losses were incurred. The outstanding feature, however, was that more than 77 millions of policies were cancelled. And this made the net gain of Life Insurance in force only 21 millions greater than it was in 1920.

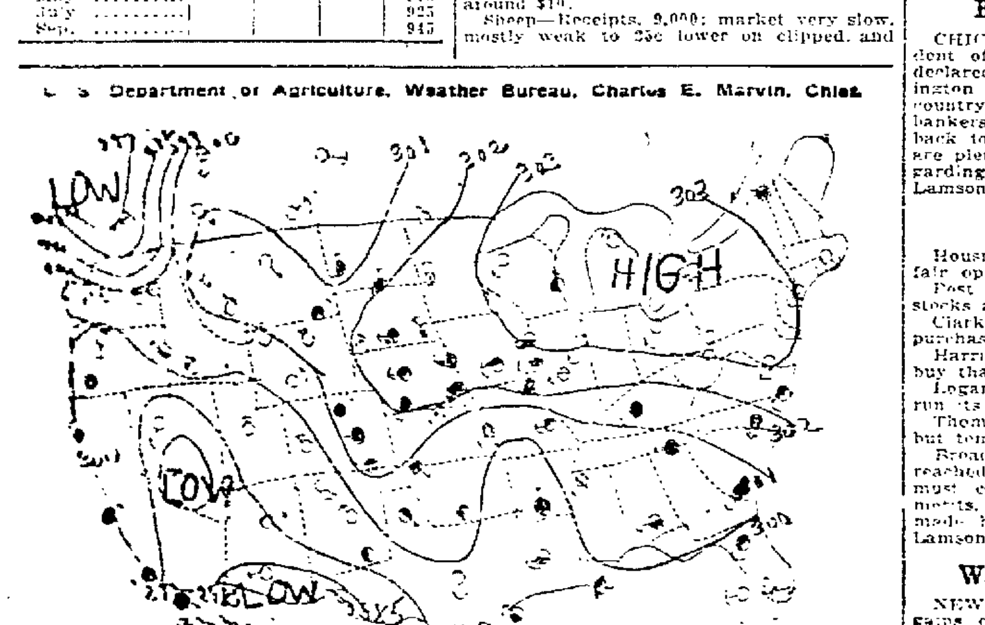

Part of this 77 millions of Life Insurance which ceased to be in force in 1921 was matured endowment and made a good profit for the policyholders. But a very big portion of it was "surrendered and lapsed" policies which brought in the policyholders some money, but caused them a heavy loss at the same time.

Nebraska furnishes about 5½ per cent of the total business done by the 88 Life Insurance companies in and admitted to the state. In 1921 these companies gained $32,210,462 from surrenders and lapses—which means that the policyholders lost that much by dropping out. And Nebraska's share of that policyholder loss from lapses is about $1,771,575. How much of it came off you?

Ask for sample of our Eltelic contract.

Almost Vocal.

The little girl, carrying a leg of mutton, entered the butcher's shop. Depositing the meat on the block, she began meekly, "Please, mother's sent the meat back."

"What's wrong with it then?" sternly demanded the butcher.

"Dunno," continued the child.

"Didn't your mother send any message concerning it?" continued the butcher.

"No; she only said, 'Tell him to put it to his nose, and the meat will speak for itself.'"—Chicago News.

MEN AND THINGS

Personally I have not felt any alarm about the migra from the farm to the cities. I have never been able to envision the populace as starving because men preferred to work where pay is better and life runs in a livelier stream. As I recall it the task was very difficult in the beginning to keep men off the land and in the towns and villages the problem was to find trained hands to do the constructive work necessary in home-making and tool-production for agriculture. The movement is the other way, without much doubt, because the age of machinery has overstocked the farms with labor and it is finding a market for its brawn.

Most persons are quite prone to classify students generally as being rather irreligious in the sense that away from home restrictions they are not apt to go to church and Sunday school as regularly as when under the parental eye. It has also been taken for granted that the charm of new friends aids in this alienation. Dr. W. H. Riley, who is Congregational student pastor at the state university, says that as a matter of fact a greater percentage of university students attend the Sunday school and church than can be found outside the university in young men and women of corresponding age.

The churches keep pastors at the university for the purpose of ministering to the temporal as well as the spiritual needs of the students. Mr. Riley says that one of the first things necessary is to get acquainted, and for this reason the denominations find it necessary to establish a house just as close to the campus as it is possible to place it. After the personal contact has been obtained the students make full and free use of the preacher's services in the way of advice as to their problems. Mr. Riley says it is surprising how many students adopt the pastors as temporary parents for this purpose.

The trustees of Union college who are bemoaning the fact that in the earlier days of its history too much of the original land holdings were sold, with the result that at present there is not enough left to take care of necessary expansion should not be too harsh in their criticism of this short-sightedness. When C. B. Anderson was a regent of the state university he found, in looking over the early records of business done by that board, that several times members of it urged upon their fellows that the four blocks originally laid out for the campus gave more ground than would ever be necessary, and moved that part of it be sold and the proceeds used for running expenses.

Business gets most of what bad name it has in the mouths of so many of the common people because of such practices as "Pittsburgh plus." The phrase may have no meaning to you, but it is easily explained. The steel companies have privately agreed not to compete, and they have fixed on "Pittsburgh plus" as the one means possible to prevent price-matching or cutting. Pittsburgh is the center of the steel industry. All prices are made on the basis of a price at Pittsburgh, plus what it would cost to haul it by rail from there to the point of destination. The steel may be made in the environs of Chicago, but the price to the Chicago user is the price at Pittsburgh plus the freight rate from Pittsburgh to Chicago.

The same situation exists in the beet sugar industry. Nebraska has five factories, but it costs the user at Grand Island, Scottsbluff, Bayard, Gering or Mitchell, three blocks from the factory, as much as it does the user back in Punxsutawney, Pa. It is the old "Pittsburgh plus" idea applied to sugar. If these sugar factories sold to nearby consumers on the basis of a reasonable profit they would monopolize the trade of that section because far-away factories would rest under the handicap of a freight rate. There would, however, be strong competition in all the twilight zones that would be reflected generally, and so they have agreed to disregard distance, and avoid price-cutting factors.

...One of the delusions of which the people find it apparently impossible to rid themselves is that if they select a large group or groups of representative men to gather and discuss and pass legislation for the entire state they have adopted the one method of getting the collected wisdom of the commonwealth working for the benefit of the whole people. This delusion has persisted in spite of the fact that something like 150 years ago Ben Franklin said, in explanation of why public affairs are so preposterously managed, that when we call a legislature together to do public business we labor under the "inconvenience of their collected passions, prejudices and private interests."

Few that have read the extravagant tales of Munchausen, "the lying baron", know that the original narrator of these classical phantasies was a real person, and that Munchausen was his true name.

BRAIN TESTS

(By Sam Loyd.)

7 Minutes to Answer This.

Aesop tells of a sportive young hare that raced a tortoise around a circular track, which was 100 yards in diameter, giving him a start of one-eighth of the distance. The hare held such a poor opinion of the other's ability that he loitered along nibbling the grass and only realized that the tortoise was putting up a great race when they met at a point when the hare had run but one-sixth of his distance. How much faster than he went before must the hare now run to win the race!

Answer to Yesterday's.

After traveling forty minutes the guide stated that they had gone just half the remaining distance to Pixley, so it is clear that the time between Bixley and Pixley consumed 120 minutes. Later on they were just half as far away from Quixley as from Pixley. Then they reached Quixley in an hour, which makes it clear that they consumed 180 minutes between Pixley and Quixley. Thus we have the time of the whole journey as five hours. It required 200 minutes for the seven-mile stretch, so the distance covered between Bixley and Pixley in 300 minutes must have been ten and a half miles.
